Flint Is Appointed By Brick Concern

Larchmont Man Assumes Duties as Hutton Co. General Manager

The appointment of Floyd W. Flint, of Larchmont, as general manager by George V. D. Hutton, president of the local brick manufacturing plant.

Mr. Flint assumed his duties with the company today.

Mr. Flint comes to the Hutton company with an extensive background in the brickmaking industry; he has been identified with the trade since 1924. His appointment by the Hutton Company coincides with an extensive production drive planned at the Kingston Point yard.

A native of Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. Flint came to New York in 1924 as secretary of the regional office of the Common Brick Manufacturers Association of America. He served that position until 1931, when he left to accept a post as operating agent for the receivers of the Empire Brick and Supply Co., at Stockport, N. Y.

In 1931 to 1941, Mr. Flint was in charge of production and sales of the Empire organization, and was in close touch with all phases of the river industry. When the Empire corporation was liquidated in 1941, Mr. Flint was employed by the Todd Shipbuilding Corporation, of New York. He served first as director of personnel training and subsequently as a construction superintendent.

In 1943 he left the Todd Corporation to take a position with the War Production Board in New York, and shortly thereafter was placed in charge of their management consultant division. He remained with the War Production Board until the fall of 1945.

Car Drivers Strike

Stamford, Conn., April 23 (P)—Thirty-four of 36 A.F.L. organized taxicab drivers struck here today in a compensation dispute with the Stamford Transit Company, Joseph P. Cleary, secretary-treasurer of Local 145 International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said the strike was authorized by a secret ballot taken last Wednesday when the company refused to grant a compensation contract change. He said company drivers, who own their own cars, under the existing agreement, and paid 25 per cent of their gross earnings to the company in return to an administrative organization which provided them with their public utilities commission licenses and other facilities.

School Aid Bill Signed

Albany, N. Y., April 23 (P)—A bill increasing state aid for school transportation by about $300,000 annually was signed today by Governor Dewey. The measure revises the formula for computing state transportation assistance. The revision was asked by Governor Dewey in his annual message to the Legislature. Dewey said the exact amount of the increase is not known. He added that the bill also "will provide a more simplified recording and reporting feature for school officials."

Milk Truck Is Dumped

Rochester, N. Y., April 23 (P)—Town of Greece police reported today about 2,000 quarts of milk had been dumped in a highway by an unidentified group of men blocked the road to halt the truck. John Mackenzie, driver of the truck which was en route to the Mackenzie Brothers creamery, was quoted by Police Chief Milton Carter as reporting that two automobiles blocked the street in front of his truck.

Entire Force of 50 Fail to Report for Work, Spokesman Says; Hope for Pact

Approximately 50 employees of the Callanan Road Improvement Company of South Rondout went on strike today following the breakdown of negotiations for a wage increase.

A company spokesman told The Freeman at noon today that the entire force had "failed to report for duty this morning." The spokesman expressed confidence that the matter might be cleared up in time for resumption of operations tomorrow morning.

Local Callanan officials said that all negotiations are being handled by representatives of the company's main office. The local office would not comment beyond the fact that the entire crew of workers had failed to show up for duty.

The Callanan company deals in crushed rock, sand, gravel and almost every phase of road building and improvement. At peak capacity it is one of the more stable major industries in the area.

Status Is Uncertain
In the absence of Callanan Company officials it could not be ascertained whether the strike was a general walkout or a sympathy measure in behalf of the Callanan employees affiliated with the Teamsters Union, A.F.L. This would mean, of course, the company's truck drivers.

According to information obtained by The Freeman, members of the Teamsters Union and Callanan officials have been at odds regarding the wage scale for several days, but had continued to report for work. It was unofficially reported to The Freeman that the common laborers had agreed to a tentative wage proposal.

Tony Bradin, a delegate of the Teamsters Union, conducted the negotiations with representatives of the main Callanan Company. Local spokesmen said they were in the dark as to the nature of the negotiations and could not state to what extent the bargaining groups were at odds. Union officials also were not available for comment.

It was learned that Bradin conferred with Callanan representatives last week but the session failed to effect a satisfactory solution. It was understood at the time that an agreement had been reached on the common labor wage scale, but the Teamsters Union and Callanan were still far apart on that wage scale.

Durocher Faces Jury

New York, April 23 (P)—Leo "Lippy" Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers and scourge of many a National League umpire, had 12 arbiters to face today—the all-male jury selected to try him on a second degree assault charge. The natty, balding manager, sitting next to his co-defendant, Joseph Moore, 50, displayed none of the argumentative nature yesterday that has characterized his baseball career as he watched the slow process of selecting the jurors.

Ethiopia Makes Offer

Washington, April 23 (P)—Ethiopia today offered to supply U.N.R.R.A. with 100,000 tons of wheat and other foodstuffs in the next year and a half for famine relief. The offer transmitted to F. H. Representative Is Expected to Visit Possible Sites for 100-Unit Buildings

Kingston's 100-unit housing project is still in a position of status quo, awaiting the arrival of a representative of the Federal Housing Authority to inspect several tentative sites, including Lawton Park, on which it is proposed to erect the units, it was said at the mayor's office today.

According to the Kingston Housing Committee the site on which to construct the housing units has to be approved by both the federal and state housing authorities. Several weeks ago, after a conference with Frederick L. Brooks, a representative of the New York State Housing Commission, the local committee made application to the state commission for 100 housing units.

These units will consist of buildings which will be converted into apartments of from one to five rooms. All apartments will be equipped with mechanical refrigeration, sanitary facilities of the latest type, and heated from a central heating plant.

The site upon which the housing units will be erected must be within easy access to bus lines. First preference in the renting of the units will be given to veterans.

New York Drive Is Begun To Stamp Out Black Market

New York, April 23 (P)—The federal government and municipal agencies joined forces today for a concerted drive to stamp out a black market in meat in the metropolitan New York area.

The move was disclosed yesterday at a news conference by Mayor William O'Dwyer and U. S. Attorney General Tom Clark.

Clark told newsmen that the city had pledged full cooperation to the federal government in the nation-wide drive against meat black markets, and added: "Prosecutions here, the largest market in the world, will be very helpful."

"You know, as well as I do, that you have been having a considerable black market in meat. We want to stop it before it gets too big."

The exact procedure to be followed by the combined city-government forces was not disclosed, but Clark said that U. S. Attorney John F. X. McGohery, of the southern district already had started prosecutions of persons charged with illegal meat dealings, and that U. S. Attorney Vincent Keogh of the eastern district would begin similar prosecutions today.

Earlier, O'Dwyer said the resources of the police, markets and health departments would be added to those of the O.P.A. to prepare and channel cases into the federal courts for prosecution under federal conspiracy charges.

Bid Is Made For Parley At Tehran

Iranian Says Red Army Troops Are Leaving Regions

Tehran, April 24 (P)—Premier Ahmed Gavam said today that F. Ipakchian, wealthy Iranian merchant and former member of parliament of both the central government and the unrecognized Azerbaijan "national government," had been sent to Tabriz to invite representatives of the Azerbaijan people for conferences here.

"He (Ipakchian) is not going to open negotiations but only to ask them to come here," Gavam said at a news conference.

Tabriz radio, identifying itself as "The Voice of Independent Kurdistan," broadcast in Kurdish today however that no "representative of the Tehran government" had yet approached the "Azerbaijan government" to open negotiations for the return of the province to the central government.

Prince Mozaffar Firouz, Iranian propaganda director, said the Red Army was "rapidly" quitting Azerbaijan and Iran. However, foreign observers said that no other reports of Soviet troops' actually leaving Azerbaijan had been received here.

An army spokesman said Premier Gavam had requested the army to investigate reports of fighting in northwestern Iran, near Zenjan, and in the desert south of Miyanduar.

Gavam was asked at his press conference for a statement on the government's attitude toward Iranian claims of ownership of oil-rich Bahrain island in the Persian gulf, now a British protectorate with an Arabian sheik ruler. The Premier said he would "have to study the question."

The Freedom Front, an organization of Left-wing publishers, has been conducting an intensive campaign for Iranian control of Bahrain. The cabinet decided recently to charge taxes and royalty on oil imported into Iran by American oil producing companies on Bahrain.

Iranians have based their claim to the island on ancient ownership. Rightwing writers have charged that the present campaign to reclaim it is subsidized by the Soviets.

O'Dea Pleads Guilty

Buffalo, N. Y., April 23 (P)—Edward D. O'Dea, 59-year-old former business associate of Senator James M. City Judge Hillery set sentencing for May 3 and ordered O'Dea held for probation department investigation.

Applications for Building Jobs Must Go to New York

Under the construction restriction order passed on March 26, the Federal Housing Authority, acting as agent for the Civilian Production Administration, will receive applications for authorization to start construction on non-form houses and apartments and for home maintenance and repair jobs costing in excess of $400 a job.

Secretary Donald Williams of the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday undertook to clarify several phases of the new regulations. It was his impression, he said, that many people do not clearly understand the provisions.

Applicants in this district are under the jurisdiction of Region 2, with headquarters on the 43rd floor, Empire State Building. The district construction manager is W. Arthur Riehl and all communications should be forwarded to him at the above address.

The Veterans Housing Program was instituted because there are not enough building materials available or in early prospect to carry out the veterans program for the starting of 2,700,000 dwelling units in 1946 and 1947; and also take care of all other contemplated construction and repair work.

C.P.A. officials anticipate either relaxing or complete lifting of the building restrictions by the end of the year, if building materials are available in normal quantities.

Community sewer and road building projects are not affected by the order, it was pointed out. On buildings necessary for community life, the District Construction Committee which knows the needs of the new community can

Chief Justice Dies From Hemorrhage; Death Called 'Disaster'

By PAUL M. YOST

Washington, April 23 (P)—Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone's sudden death cut the disagreeing Supreme Court to a seven-man tribunal today and stirred wide speculation on President Truman's possible choice for the nation's highest judicial place.

The hard-working, 73-year-old Stone fired two dissenting opinions at his colleagues in a prolonged court session yesterday, then faltered over the first of three majority opinions he had prepared. He paled and his first words trailed off.

The court session was halted abruptly. Doctors found Stone nauseated. They said he had indigestion. He was taken home. A few hours later his secretary announced his death from "a massive cerebral hemorrhage."

Mr. Truman, who learned of the Chief Justice's death aboard the Aircraft Carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, termed it "a grievous loss to the country" and said he was "terribly shocked."

The first wave of speculation touched off by Stone's death centered on the possibility that Mr. Truman might designate a Republican to fill the court vacancy but elevate one of the seven Democrats now on the bench to Chief Justice.

Among the latter, Associate Justices William O. Douglas, Robert H. Jackson and Felix Frankfurter were mentioned most prominently and in that order. Other Democrats on the bench are Hugo Black, who now is first in seniority; Stanley F. Reed, Frank Murphy and Wiley Rutledge.

Patterson Is Mentioned

Talk of Republican candidates for the tribunal usually started off with the name of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

The last job Stone completed on the high bench yesterday—the reading of a dissenting opinion—was symbolic of some of the court work which won him greatest fame. A prolific dissenter in his 21 years on the bench, Stone had the perhaps unprecedented privilege of seeing two of his dissenting opinions later become the law of the land.

In one of these he opposed the majority's reasoning that school children could be forced to salute the flag. Later the court said saluting could not be required.

In the other triumph for Stone, the court eventually accepted his view that city ordinances imposing

30 Million Children Parole Violator Is Face Starvation In European Areas

Hoover Adviser Reports Children's Condition Presents Tragic Problem

Cairo, April 23 (P)—Maurice Pate, adviser to Herbert Hoover on child food problems, said today that between 20 and 30 million children in Europe urgently need food—"the most poignant human problem in Europe today."

He estimated that two to three hundred million dollars are needed for an adequate supplementary feeding program in Europe and recommended that it consist of at least one meal daily of 600 calories.

Pate, a New York investment banker who headed the Polish child feeding program after the first World War, surveyed current child health and food conditions in Poland, Finland, Sweden, Norway, England, the Netherlands, Belgium, Denmark, Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia and Greece.

"The worst conditions were found in Poland, which has the greatest needs," he said in a report submitted to Hoover, honorary chairman of the U. S. Famine Emergency Committee.

He said in a press conference that the situation in Germany is practically the same as in Poland, but added: "The Germans are better organized and are making the best use of what they get."

In the present food deficit countries on the continent of Europe, Pate's report said, "there are approximately 40,000,000 children from infants to 18 years of age."

Clifton Williams Failed to Keep Promise but Judge Doesn't; Other Cases

Clifton Williams, brought back from North Carolina by Sheriff George Smith, as a parole violator was sentenced to six months in the Ulster county jail, Monday afternoon by Judge John M. Cashin.

As a resident of Marlborough, Williams faced Judge Cashin in June, 1944, on a charge of unlawful entry, emanating from the theft of chickens, but was allowed to return to his farm job to help produce food for the nation's wartime consumption.

Gets Lenient Treatment

The judge placed Williams in custody of his attorney, Harry Gold, and directed him to return to court in October. Consideration was given to postponement of the case because Williams had contended he was not too deeply involved in the chicken theft.

Williams failed to report on the postponed date. In court yesterday, he said he didn't show up, because he went to North Carolina upon learning of the death of a child and could not make sufficient money for the trip back to Kingston.

When asked why he hadn't written to the court or to his attorney, Williams said he couldn't write.

One Pilot Was Reported Wearing U. S. Flier's Suit; Planes Are Not Well Marked

Suggestions Made

American Field Team Says Old Markings on Plane Show

Chungking, April 23 (P)—American-made Chinese Air Force planes were operating over Szepeingai at the time the Chinese Communists claimed they had been strafed by United States fliers, General Marshall's headquarters was informed today.

A message from the American member of the Mukden field team said one Chinese P-51 fighter plane pilot, Lt. Chen, was missing in the Szepeingai operation, and was wearing an American flying suit.

The communist dispatch had claimed that one of the planes was shot down and the pilot found to be an American.

United States military sources previously declared there were no American owned planes in the area at the time the officers making the report recommended that the Chinese aircraft, operating from Mukden, which were obtained from the United States, be plainly and permanently marked with Chinese National Air Force identification.

The planes, he said, are still bearing the old United States Air Force markings covered with cold water paint, which is easily removed.

"The Nationalists charged the Communists have Russians fighting (on the Communist side), and now the Communists are making charges concerning the Americans," the message said. "I suggest the Chinese be asked to mark planes permanently. No American plane should fly north of Mukden without clearance both from the Communists and Nationalists."

Attacking Since April 18

The Communist New China Daily News reported today that three divisions of the National First Army and one division of the 71st Army had been attacking Szepeingai since April 18. The dispatch said the Communists still controlled the city, however, up to Saturday.

The People's Daily said today the vanguard of the government's First Army had reached Kungchuling. It predicted bitter fighting would follow. Eight Communist troops are reported concentrated in that area.

The dispatch, which gave no details, was dated Peiping, site of the Sino-American truce headquarters and source of much news of Manchuria.

Kungchuling is 40 miles south of Changchun, the Manchurian capital recently captured by Communists, and is about 30 miles north of Szepeingai, for which government and Chinese Red armies are fighting. Presumably, a portion of the First Army by-passed Szepeingai to reach Kungchuling.

Meanwhile, the armed thrust of Communists elsewhere in rich Manchuria, and peace parleys in Chungking moved ahead, with no indication when either would reach a climax.

The Communists were reported already moving small groups into Harbin, North Manchurian industrial center.

General Marshall continued his efforts to achieve a truce, and awaited the reply of Chinese Communists to his demand for proof or retraction of their charge that American planes had attacked them.

American Army, Navy and Marine headquarters said none of their planes had been in the Szepeingai area, where the Communists alleged they had been strafed last Wednesday and Friday.

Good Crops Seen For Apples, Peaches

Ithaca, N. Y., April 23 (P)—New York fruit farmers may expect a good apple and peach crop this year if at least one-third of the blossoms escape damage, a Cornell University agricultural professor observed today.

Dr. A. J. Jeinicke of the State College of Agriculture also said in a statement that thirty thousand acres has been reported to strawberries and grapes.

The cold spell near the end of March caused considerable damage to some varieties of sweet cherries and to some of the sour cherries, he reported.

With fruit buds more advanced than normal for this time of year, Dr. Jeinicke said, cloudy days with a temperature ranging from 35 to 50 degrees are ideal.

Applications for Building Jobs Must Go to New York

Under the construction restriction order passed on March 26, the Federal Housing Authority, acting as agent for the Civilian Production Administration, will receive and process all applications for authorization to start construction on non-farm houses and apartments and for home maintenance and repair jobs costing in excess of $400 a job.

Secretary Donald Williams of the local Chamber of Commerce yesterday undertook to clarify several phases of the new regulations. It was his impression, he said, that many people do not clearly understand the provisions.

Applications in this district are under the jurisdiction of Region 2, with headquarters on the 43rd floor, Empire State Building. The district construction manager is W. Arthur Rich and all communications should be forwarded to him at the above address.

The Veterans Housing Program was instituted because there are not enough building materials available or in early prospect to carry out the veterans program for the starting of 2,700,000 dwellings in 1946 and 1947; and also take care of all other contemplated construction and repair work.

C.P.A. officials anticipate either relaxing or complete lifting of the building restrictions by the end of the year, if building materials are available in normal quantities.

Community sewer and road building projects are not affected by the order, it was pointed out. On buildings necessary for community life, the District Construction Committee which knows the needs of the new community can

One Pilot Was Reported Wearing U. S. Flier's Suit; Planes Are Not Well Marked

Suggestions Made American Field Team Says Old Markings on Plane Show

Chungking, April 23 (AP)—American-made Chinese Air Force planes were operating over Szepeingai at the time the Chinese Communists claimed they had been strafed by United States fliers, General Marshall's headquarters was informed today.

A message from the American member of the Mukden field team said one Chinese P-51 fighter plane pilot, Lt. Chen, was missing in the Szepeingai operation, and was wearing an American flying suit.

The communist dispatch had claimed that one of the planes was shot down and the pilot found to be an American.

United States military sources previously declared there were no American owned planes in the area at the time the fliers making the report recommended that the Chinese aircraft, operating from Mukden, which were obtained from the United States, be plainly and permanently marked with Chinese National Air Force identification.

The planes, he said, are still bearing the old United States Air Force markings covered with cold water paint, which is easily removed.

"The Nationalists charged the Communists have Russians fighting (on the Communist side), and now the Communists are making charges concerning the Americans, the message said. I suggest the Chinese be asked to mark planes permanently. No American plane should fly north of Mukden without clearance both from the Communists and Nationalists."

Attacking Since April 18 The Communist New China Daily News reported today that three divisions of the National First Army and one division of the 71st Army had been attacking Szepeingai since April 18. The dispatch said the Communists still controlled the city, however, up to Saturday.

The People's Daily said today the vanguard of the government's First Army had reached Kungchuling. It predicted bitter fighting would follow. Eighty thousand Communist troops are reported concentrated in that area.

The dispatch, which gave no details, was dated Peiping, site of the Sino-American truce headquarters and source of much news of Manchuria.

Kungchuling is 40 miles south of Changchung, the Manchurian capital recently captured by Communists, and is about 80 miles north of Szepeingai, for which government and Chinese forces are fighting. Presumably, a portion of the First Army by-passed Szepeingai to reach Kungchuling.

Meanwhile, the armed thrust of Communists elsewhere in rich Manchuria, and peace parleys in Chungking moved ahead, with no indication when either would reach a climax.

The Communists were reported already moving small groups into Harbin, North Manchurian industrial center.

General Marshall continued his efforts to achieve a truce, and awaited the reply of Chinese Communists to his demand for proof or retraction of their charge that American planes had attacked them.

American Army, Navy and Marine headquarters said none of their planes had been in the Szepeingai area, where the Communists alleged they had been strafed last Wednesday and Friday.

Good Crops Seen For Apples, Peaches

Ithaca, N. Y., April 23 (AP)—New York fruit farmers may expect a good apple and peach crop this year if at least one-third of the blossoms escape damage, a Cornell University agricultural professor observed today.

Dr. A. J. Jenckes of the State College of Agriculture also said in a statement that little damage as yet has been reported to strawberries and grapes.

The cold spell near the end of March caused considerable damage to some varieties of sweet cherries and to some of the sour cherries, he reported.

With fruit buds more advanced than normal for this time of year, Dr. Jenckes said, cloudy days with a temperature ranging from 35 to 50 degrees are ideal.

'Quiet' Youth Goes Berserk Aboard L.S.T. in China, Navy Says

Shanghai, April 23 (AP)—A 19-year-old seaman killed nine shipmates and wounded a tenth in a berserk blaze of gunfire aboard an L.S.T. in the Yangtze river today, then stabbed himself.

The Navy announced that the sailor was L. B. Smith, seaman second class, of (20 Colonial Place) Asheville, N. C. The orgy of shooting and stabbing ended, the Navy said, when Smith was disarmed by an unnamed sailor, himself mortally wounded, and was floored by a metal bench wielded by Kenneth M. Stalneck, 18, seaman second class, of (1012 New Holland Road) Reading, Pa.

Brought to the Navy hospital ship Repose in Shanghai Harbor, Smith was given a 50-50 chance to survive three deep gashes in the upper abdomen inflicted with his own knife.

This was the way the tragedy was reconstructed by the Navy as it prepared to launch a court of inquiry.

Smith, described as a quiet, introspective youth who left the United States only February 21, had stood a 10 p. m. to midnight watch as gangway messenger.

At midnight it was believed he went aft to the fantail, where he frequently sat alone.

Later he obtained a carbine from the cabin of the gunnery officer who was away on watch. He also had a pistol which had been concealed among his own effects.

At about 3 a. m. he entered the sleeping compartment of the L.S.T., where 30 shipmates were asleep. Switching on the lights and without a word, he opened fire. Seven seamen were killed outright and two others died later of their wounds.

Smith pumped 20 bullets into the close quarters from his carbine and pistol. When his ammunition was exhausted, he leaped upon his victims with a knife.

Stalneck, who escaped the bullets and the mortally wounded sailor leaped from their bunks. Despite their wounds, the unarmed sailor reached Smith first. But before he could disarm Smith, the young sailor plunged the knife into his own body. Stalneck then knocked Smith down with the metal bench.

Smith and the three wounded were flown to the Repose in a Navy P.B.Y. after receiving emergency treatment on board the L.S.T. Two of the wounded later died.

Mussolini's Body Is Taken From Pauper's Grave

Milan Authorities Report Theft; Everything Was in Order Yesterday

Milan, April 23 (AP)—Milan municipal authorities reported today that the body of Benito Mussolini was removed during the night from Maggiore cemetery here by "unknown" persons.

An inquiry to ascertain the responsibility was under way. The discovery was made by workers who were in the cemetery to exhume other bodies.

Mussolini was buried in a pauper's grave in the cemetery soon after his execution by Partisans near the Swiss border in April, 1945.

The bodies of Claretta Petacci, his mistress, and five henchmen who were executed at the same time were buried near his grave.

Mussolini was captured on the shores of Lake Como attempting to escape into Switzerland. After a summary trial, he and the others were shot.

The bodies were brought to Milan and hung up for exhibition in the public square. Thousands flocked to see the corpse of the man who had led Italy into war, and one woman fired several shots into his body, crying that each bullet represented her vengeance for her sons lost in the war.

The Maggiore cemetery is called "the German camp" by Milanese because Germans who died before the liberation of Italy are buried there.

Everything Was in Order

The grave was unmarked. Two Associated Press photographers and a correspondent went to the cemetery yesterday to get pictures of Mussolini's grave and found everything in order.

A cemetery watchman pointed to what he supposed was Mussolini's grave, saying that the body of Achille Starace, former secretary of Fascist party, was nearby.

But only three or four persons actually knew the true place where Mussolini was buried. Giovanni Cavazza, a lawyer and high municipal official, two days ago told the complete story of the burial.

Later in the afternoon of April 30, 1945, a military truck brought three coffins to the cemetery. They contained the bodies of Mussolini, Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress, and Starace. The coffins were unmarked, and only a commune official knew in which coffin was the body of Mussolini.

After a military priest had given the benediction, they were buried near the German graves. Attending the ceremony were an official of the Red Cross and the military personnel on the truck.

Claretta was not buried near her lover because, Cavazza said, he gave orders "not to place two adulterers, sinners against God's law, together."

The ground over Mussolini's was completely bare, as was the ground over the other graves. Flowers were rarely seen there. Yesterday only a simple bouquet was on the ground near the place where Il Duce was probably buried.

While a photographer was taking a picture of the place, a woman kicked the flowers away, saying, "this is the thing I have done against him; he has done a lot of evil to me."

New York, April 23 (AP)—The Stock Market, with scattered exceptions, retreated to losing territory today although never subjected to any great pressure.

Further profit chasing was blamed partly on the thought that the list had advanced more than eight average points from the February low to a 15-year peak and was vulnerable to a substantial technical correction. Threatened production curtailments in the steel and motor industries due to the coal strike, in addition to doubts regarding important restraints being placed on O.P.A., inspired a certain amount of liquidation.

Dealings tapered after a few lively morning flurries but declines of fractions to more than 2 points predominated near the fourth hour.

Casualties during most of the proceedings included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Anaconda, Kennecott, Dupont, Eastman Kodak, Union Carbide, Philip Morris, C. S. Gypsum, Electric Power & Light, American Water Works, N. Y. Central and Northern Pacific. Resistant were Standard Oil (N. J.) Santa Fe and Boeing.

Bonds slipped and commodities were uneven.

Farm Bureaus Will Make Decision on Using School Help

Commissioner of Agriculture DuMont has designated the boards of directors of Farm Bureaus as the bodies authorized to declare the existence of an emergency necessitating the employment of pupils from the schools for farm work—if and when such emergency arises.

The bill recently signed by Governor Dewey, which authorizes employment of pupils, under certain conditions, replaces the former emergency legislation. The so-called "war diplomas" are discontinued; also seniors may not be released for such work within the last two months prior to closing of school.

Pupils may not be released for emergency farm work for more than 30 school days in the year, not for more than 20 days in any one three-month term. Pupils of 14 or 15 years of age must secure farm work permits from the school before taking employment.

The declaration of an emergency must be filed with the superintendent of schools.

Commenting on the law this morning, Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau agent said he felt that school should use considerable caution about making certain that pupils are really needed before releasing them for such emergency farm work.

George E. Hutchinson, chief of the bureau of guidance, State Department of Education, said in a recent letter to superintendents of schools and principals of high schools:

"Both the Board of Regents and the Commissioner of Education are of the opinion that there is less need this year for the release of pupils than during the war years."

"We understand that there is a considerable number of persons releasing unemployment insurance who should be available for employment on farms."

City Firemen Nip Blaze in Congested Area Downtown

Burning sheds and a high wooden fence in the rear of the apartment houses at 75 and 77 Hasbrouck avenue caused fear among residents of the neighborhood, who left their homes today at noon until firemen brought the blaze under control.

An alarm was sent in from the fire call box at Hasbrouck avenue and Mill street, and firemen from the Central station under direction of Chief Joseph L. Murphy responded to fight the blaze.

The chief said he had not found the origin of the fire, up until the time The Freeman went to press, but told a reporter that it apparently started in a small open shed, spreading to a larger wooden building and along the fence.

There wasn't much left of the small shed, where the fire supposedly started, and the larger one was badly damaged. The fence was destroyed.

The firemen made quick work of laying two lines of hose from street hydrant, and soon after their arrival the blaze was extinguished, relieving strain on part of house owners and tenants in the vicinity of the fire.

The burned sheds were the property of H. Mones, the fire department reported.

Be Careful, Mister! Don't Waken Aunt Mary; She's Snoozing on Standard Time

By ARLENE WOLF
(AP Newsfeatures Writer)
New York, April 23 (AP)—Got the time, mister?

Wait a minute, now—looking at your watch isn't going to help a bit. Now that Daylight Saving is coming back (April 28) the question won't be what time it is, but where are you?

During the war, everybody had the equivalent of Daylight Saving. You might have said that Daylight Saving was Standard Time. Now pushing the clocks ahead again will be a local proposition. Some will do it, and some won't.

For example—You're in New York city and want to telephone Aunt Mary in California after dinner. It's seven o'clock Eastern Daylight Saving Time, and normally there's a three hour difference between your time and aunt Mary's. Now it will be different. When New York pushed its clocks ahead Aunt Mary and all the other Californians didn't. That means there's a four hour difference. It's only two o'clock in California, and Aunt Mary's probably on the last of her after-lunch 40 winks, and she'll be mad if your call wakes her.

And if you think not having an aunt in California is going to get you out of this timely mess, you're mistaken. If you want to take a little trip, you'll have to take into account which time the railroad is operating on. The New York Central, for instance, is going to stick to Standard Time, while the Pennsylvania is pushing its clocks ahead. The question now is if you're in a Standard area, and want to take a train that runs on Daylight Saving Time, where are you? Either too late or too early for train-time probably.

Mixups Get More Complex
Just listening to the radio during these I-didn't-know-what-time-it-was days will be confusing too. Both the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System are going on Daylight Saving. That, however, does not mean that they're advancing the program times one hour. If Kaptivating Kiddies normally are on the air now at 7 p. m., they'll still be on at 7 p. m., only it really will be 6 p. m., because they're on Daylight Saving, see?

If you're in a non-Daylight Saving Time community, your local radio station will do one of two things: either put the program through at the new hour (which is the old hour in New York), or record the program and put it through at your old hour.

To add to the confusion, the American Broadcasting Company is going to try to operate on both times. The network says it's all very simple.

For example, a program that is on the air from New York at 1:30 Eastern Standard Time will go out at 2:30 Eastern Daylight Time, which is really 1:30 Eastern Standard Time. So far, so good. That brings said program to Chicago at 1:30 Central Daylight Time which is fine for Chicago, but not so fine for the rest of the area which is on Standard Time. So to avoid the Standard Time cities getting their programs too early, the programs will be re-recorded, held at Chicago, and re-broadcast at the regular time for the Standard Time cities.

Here's Aunt Mary's Time
Some states have barred Daylight Saving completely: Mississippi, Texas, Kansas, Arizona, Washington, Utah, Minnesota, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Wisconsin, Michigan, North Carolina, Iowa, Oklahoma, California, Maryland, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Arkansas, Georgia, North Dakota, and South Dakota. So long as you stay within those states, you're all set—on the old time.

LOOK OUT FOR PIN-WORMS

Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong! And these pests, living inside the human body, can cause real distress. So watch out for the warning signs that may mean Pin-Worms—especially the aggravating rectal itch. Get JAYNE'S P-W and follow the directions. P-W is the Pin-Worm treatment developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, after years of patient research. The small, easy-to-take P-W tablets act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. Ask your druggist: P-W for Pin-Worms!

for Daylight Saving on a statewide basis—Connecticut, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont. As long as you stay within those states, you're all set—on the new time.

But come on over into the remainder—the states that permit individual localities to decide what time it is. In Missouri, if you're in St. Louis, it will be Daylight Saving. If you're in Kansas City, it won't. Ohioans in Youngstown and Zanesville will gain an hour, those in Akron, Cincinnati, Dayton, Toledo, and Cleveland will not.

Down south, some people in Tennessee will push their clocks ahead, and some won't—including the citizens of Memphis, Knoxville and Nashville. In Birmingham, Ala., it will be four o'clock and time for tea, while in Montgomery, Ala., it will be five o'clock, and a bit too late.

Miami residents will push the clock forward, those in Jacksonville will not. Augusta, Me., will have Daylight Saving, but Augusta, Ga., won't. Portland, Me., goes on the new time, Portland, Ore., sticks to the old.

If you want to go from anywhere in Virginia to anywhere in West Virginia your chances for being mixed up are better than wonderful. Because both states leave it to the locality to decide whether it is or isn't an hour earlier than it was. Business men in Detroit (old time) going to Chicago will be there an hour later than they would have been before Chicago went on Daylight Saving, but if they continue on to Cincinnati, they'll be right back where they started from.

Anglo-U.S. Committee Asks Entry for 100,000

New York, April 23 (AP)—The New York Times said today in a dispatch from London that the British-American Committee of inquiry on Jewish problems has prepared a report recommending that 100,000 Jews be admitted to Palestine as quickly as possible.

The report, representing the unanimous opinion of the committee, will be filed in London and Washington today, the dispatch said. It added that the committee did not recommend the form that any future Palestine state should take.

The Times said that "on the basis of what is known of the report it appears to be a fairly complete repudiation of the British White Paper of 1939."

"The report was believed to recommend the end of the policy of restricting Jewish land purchases in Palestine, although safeguarding some Arab interests particularly in the Arab sections of the Holy Land."

Sailor Kills 9 Shipmates, Wounds 10th in Outburst

Weather Sets Record
Albany, N. Y., April 23 (AP)—The mercury rose to low eighties in Central New York today, setting a new record for the day in Syracuse. The 81 degrees recorded in Syracuse was six degrees above the previous 1942 mark. Other cities reporting high readings were Rochester and Elmira, 82, and Binghamton and Dansville 81. Other noon temperatures included: Rome, 72; Buffalo, 73; Albany, 68, and New York city at LaGuardia Airport, 64.

'Quiet' Youth Goes Berserk Aboard L.S.T. in China, Navy Says

Shanghai, April 23 (AP)—A 19-year-old seaman killed nine shipmates and wounded a tenth in a berserk blaze of gunfire aboard an L.S.T. in the Yangtze river today, then stabbed himself.

The Navy announced that the sailor was L. B. Smith, seaman second class, of (1012 New Holland Road) Reading, Pa.

Brought to the Navy hospital ship Repose in Shanghai Harbor, Smith was given a 50-50 chance to survive three deep gashes in the upper abdomen inflicted with his own knife.

This was the way the tragedy was reconstructed by the Navy as it prepared to launch a court of inquiry.

Smith, described as a quiet, introspective youth who left the United States only February 21, had stood a 10 p. m. to midnight watch as gangway messenger.

At midnight it was believed he went aft to the fantail, where he frequently sat alone.

Later he obtained a carbine from the cabin of the gunnery officer who was away on watch. He also had a pistol which had been concealed among his own effects.

At about 3 a. m. he entered the sleeping compartment of the L.S.T., where 30 shipmates were asleep. Switching on the lights and without a word, he opened fire. Seven seamen were killed outright and two others died later of their wounds.

Smith pumped 20 bullets into the close quarters from his carbine and pistol. When his ammunition was exhausted, he leaped upon his victims with a knife.

Stalneck, who escaped the bullets, and the mortally wounded sailor leaped from their bunks. Despite their wounds, the unarmed sailors reached Smith first. But before he could disarm Smith, the young sailor plunged the knife into his own body. Stalneck then knocked Smith down with the metal bench.

Smith and the three wounded were flown to the Repose in a Navy P.B.Y. after receiving emergency treatment on board the L.S.T. Two of the wounded later died.

Mussolini's Body Is Taken From Pauper's Grave

Milan Authorities Report Theft; Everything Was in Order Yesterday

Milan, April 23 (AP)—Milan municipal authorities reported today that the body of Benito Mussolini was removed during the night from Maggiori cemetery here by "unknown" persons.

An inquiry to ascertain the responsibility was under way. The discovery was made by workers who were in the cemetery to exhume other bodies.

Mussolini was buried in a pauper's grave in the cemetery soon after his execution by Partisans near the Swiss border in April, 1945.

The bodies of Claretta Petacci, his mistress, and five henchmen who were executed at the same time were buried near his grave.

Mussolini was captured on the shores of Lake Como attempting to flee into Switzerland. After a summary trial, he and the others were shot.

The bodies were brought to Milan and hung up for exhibition in the public square. Thousands flocked to see the corpse of the man who had led Italy into war, and one woman fired several shots into his body, crying that each bullet represented her vengeance for her sons lost in the war.

The Maggiori cemetery was called the German cemetery by Milanese because Germans who died before the liberation of Italy are buried there.

Everything Was In Order. The grave was unmarked. Two Associated Press photographers and a correspondent went to the cemetery yesterday to get pictures of Mussolini's grave and found everything in order.

A cemetery watchman pointed to what he supposed was Mussolini's grave, saying that the body of Achille Starace, former secretary of Fascist party, was nearby.

But only three or four persons actually knew the true place where Mussolini was buried. Giovanni Cavazza, a lawyer and municipal official, two days ago told the complete story of the burial.

Late in the afternoon of April 30, 1945, a military truck brought three coffins to the cemetery. They contained the bodies of Mussolini, Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress, and Starace. The coffins were unmarked, and only a common official in which coffin was the body of Mussolini.

After a military priest had given the benediction, they were buried near the German graves. Attending the ceremony were an official of the Red Cross and the military personnel on the truck.

Claretta was not buried near her lover because, Cavazza said, he gave orders "not to place two adulterers, sinners against God's law, together."

The ground over Mussolini's was completely bare, as was the ground over 22 other graves. Flowers were rarely seen there. Yesterday only a simple bouquet was on the ground near the place where Il Duce was probably buried.

While a photographer was taking a picture of the place, a woman kicked the flowers away, saying, "this is the only bad thing I have done against him; he has done a lot of evil to me."

New York, April 23 (AP)—The Stock Market, with scattered exceptions, retreated to losing territory today although never subjected to any great pressure.

Further profit cashing was blamed partly on the thought that the list had advanced more than eight average points from the February low to a 15-year peak and was vulnerable to a substantial technical correction. Threatened production curtailments in the steel and motor industries due to the coal strike, in addition to doubts regarding important restraints being placed on O.P.A., inspired a certain amount of liquidation.

Dealings tapered after a few lively morning surges but declines of fractions to more than 2 points predominated near the fourth hour.

Casualties during most of the proceedings included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Goodyear, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Anaconda, Kennecott, DuPont, Eastman Kodak, Union Carbide, Philip Morris, U. S. Gypsum, Electric Power & Light, American Water Works, N. Y. Central and Northern Pacific. Rumors were Standard Oil (N. J.) Santa Fe and Boeing.

Bonds slipped and commodities were uneven.

Farm Bureaus Will Make Decision on Using School Help

Commissioner of Agriculture DuPont has designated the boards of directors of Farm Bureaus as the bodies authorized to declare the existence of an emergency necessitating the employment of pupils from the schools for farm work—if and when such emergency arises.

The bill recently signed by Governor Dewey, which authorizes employment of pupils, under certain conditions, replaces the former war emergency legislation. The so-called "war diplomats" are discontinued; also seniors may not be released for such work within the last two months prior to closing of school.

Pupils may not be released for emergency farm work for more than 90 school days in the year, not for more than 20 days in any one three-month term. Pupils of 14 or 15 years of age must secure farm work permits from the school before taking employment.

The declaration of an emergency must be filed with the superintendent of schools.

Commenting on the law this morning, Albert Kurdt, Farm Bureau agent said that he felt that schools should use considerable caution and make certain that pupils are really needed before releasing them for such emergency farm work.

George E. Hutchinson, chief of the bureau of guidance, State Department of Education, said in a recent letter to superintendents of schools and principals of high schools:

"Both the Board of Regents and the Commissioner of Education are of the opinion that there is less need this year for the release of pupils than during the war years."

"We understand that there is a considerable number of persons receiving unemployment insurance who should be available for employment on farms."

City Firemen Nip Blaze in Congested Area Downtown

Burning sheds and a high wooden fence in the rear of the apartment houses at 75 and 77 Hasbrouck avenue caused fear among residents of the neighborhood, who left their homes today at noon until firemen brought the blaze under control.

An alarm was sent in from the fire call box at Hasbrouck avenue and Mill street, and firemen from the Central station under direction of Chief Joseph L. Murphy responded to fight the blaze.

The chief said he had not found the origin of the fire, up until the time The Freeman went to press, but told a reporter that it apparently started in a small open shed, spreading to a larger wooden building and along the fence.

There wasn't much left of the small shed, where the fire spread, and the larger one was badly damaged. The fence was destroyed.

The firemen made quick work of laying two lines of hose from street hydrants, and soon after their arrival the blaze was extinguished, relieving strain on the part of house owners and tenants in the vicinity of the fire.

The burned sheds were the property of H. Mones, the fire department reported.

However, the judge gave consideration to the fact that Williams had spent 109 days in jail and ordered that the time be taken off the six-month sentence.

"If to this is added a parent's responsibility of providing for children at home you have touched on the most poignant human problem in Europe today," he said.

He said England was doing a "magnificent" child-feeding job and that Finland was struggling to provide a "modest soup" for children.

Will Name Directors

Albany, N. Y., April 23 (AP)—A nine-man board of directors will be named by Governor Dewey in the near future to administer the State World Trade Corporation, designed to establish an international industrial park within the state. Dewey, in the presence of former Governor David Sholtz of Florida, signed last night a bill establishing the Public Benefit Corporation with an appropriation of $100,000.

Race Track Leader Is Slain; Police Seek Black Car

Woonsocket, R. I., April 23 (AP)—Occupants of a black sedan early today pulled up alongside an automobile driven by John F. Letendre, 68, widely known race track executive, hotel owner and politician, and, in gangland fashion, shot him dead.

Letendre, returning from his Blackstone Hotel, was pitched from his station wagon when it ran out of control up a bank, 300 feet from his home.

James R. Tempest, living nearby, said his son saw Letendre's body roll out of the station wagon as it went over on its side.

Tempest said he ran out and found Letendre, whom he knew, bleeding profusely. Police said two shots were fired, apparently from a pistol.

In addition to the hotel here, he operated a hotel in Miami, Fla., from which city he returned only two weeks ago. He was a founder of Gulf Stream Park in Florida.

In racing circles, Letendre was known as a heavy plunger, who would bet up to $10,000 in an afternoon. Acquaintances described him as an "up and down" man financially, having plenty of money at one time and then having little—only to recoup later.

Police Chief Turcotte said that robbery had been ruled out as a motive for the shooting, inasmuch as "almost $1,000" was found in Letendre's pocket.

Police spent hours questioning residents of the neighborhood, an employee of the Blackstone Hotel and a guest at the hotel who was supposed to have been talking with the victim shortly before the latter left for his doom.

Detectives said there were indications Letendre had been forced to bring his car down to a crawl, probably by being blocked by the other machine. The door beside the wheel was opened, police said, and the killer fired two bullets at close range.

One bullet passed through Letendre's head and struck the side of his station wagon. The second slug plowed into his jaw.

At the point of the crime, Letendre apparently was about to make a very sharp left turn from Spring street into Prospect—an exclusive residential area.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1946

FIRE CONTROL HERE

Kingston's record fire prevention and control during the past year was considerably better than that shown by most of the nation's cities over 20,000 population, on the basis of data gathered by the National Fire Protection Association from 485 cities.

Fires in Kingston destroyed property valued at $51,717 during the year, a loss equivalent to $1.81 for every man, woman and child. It compares favorably in rate with $2.66 per capita average loss reported by the other cities.

The local fire department's effectiveness is shown by the fact that the 153 building fires in the city in 1945 were quickly controlled and damage held to a minimum. The average loss per fire was $338 compared with $640 in other cities.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy states that the danger from fire is on the increase and he exhorts householders promptly discard old papers and all other accumulations in the attics, cellars and closets.

In order to maintain this record, all citizens must cooperate in eliminating fire hazards. The individuals, in most instances, must provide the prevention that will forestall calamity.

In its report the Association notes as a regrettable waste of fire protection facilities, the large number of deliberate, malicious false alarms with which each fire department has to cope.

TRAGIC DELAY

It is a rather common procedure to "take the will for the deed." People read in the newspapers about some necessary thing to be done for human welfare and say to themselves: "Yes, of course, this must be done." Then they forget about it, under the pressure of daily life and work, or assume that it has been done.

But some do not forget. Among them is Leland B. Henry, executive director of the Commission on Christian Social Relations of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, who reminds the American public of such facts as these:

Large areas of European farm land will go untillied this year because men are too weak from hunger to till them.

The President at Washington has shown that this nation is 12,000,000 bushels short of fulfilling its export commitments for the first quarter of 1946.

One "wheatless day" per week, urged so generally that many people seem to think it has already been done, is not yet established, though its establishment would be fairly simple.

Apparently many well-meaning people are telling what to do, but few or none are setting up the practical machinery to do it. Thus many starve in Europe, and millions "exist on a level of bare existence." Surely, in so rich and generous a nation as ours, this is unnecessary.

NAMES THAT DRAW

What's in a name? Everything, the late Charles F. Hurley would have said. Elected three times state treasurer of Massachusetts, he went on to the governorship in 1937 and 1938. Nothing so remarkable in this, perhaps. But he has had three successors as state treasurer, all of whom are named Hurley.

Massachusetts is not alone in showing the drawing powers of a popular name. George Olsen obtained the Democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska in 1944, over the opposition of the party leaders, and despite the fact that he was a waiter and politically unknown. His Scandinavian name is generally thought to be the reason. In Ohio, where one Day family has produced several eminent jurists, any lawyer bearing that name, however unrelated, is said to be reasonably sure of being elected to the bench.

It is not always racial clannishness. Often voters confuse the candidate with some one whom they know. A generation ago Cincinnati boasted of three well-known John C. Hoffmans, in different circles of life. When

GIVE U.N. A HOME

The United Nations was encouraged by our government to make its home in the United States. Geneva would have made better sense, but the Russians objected to Geneva because the League found Russia guilty of making war on Finland. Therefore, the League could not be continued and everything connected with it, including the city of Geneva, its lake, the League palace became interdicted.

So they decided on the United States and sent a Commission headed by a Yugoslav, Stoyan Gavrilovich, here to find a temporary and a permanent site. Gavrilovich acted from the American standpoint, extraordinarily. He passed about the place like a conquering hero. He outlined a grandiose area of 40 square miles of the best suburbs in the country. He gave an interview to the press in which he offended some of our most honored citizens. Americans in Connecticut and New York wondered when they would be summarily thrown out of their homes—some held by families for centuries. Gavrilovich was so brusque and imperious that U.N.—then called U.N.O.—left a bad taste.

And the worst fear of all was extraterritoriality, a system which puts a state within a state, which provides an enclave outside the law, where every form of impropriety and lawlessness could flourish as it did in cities like Shanghai, Tientsin and Hankow. And neither the police of the state nor the F.B.I. could do anything about it.

Since then, U.N. has been a homeless orphan in our country. It was put temporarily in Hunter College where it should not have been put at all. Now it is being moved to the World Fair grounds in the Flushing Meadows to the annoyance of ice-skaters. The offices are scattered, but are to be concentrated in the Sperry Plant near Great Neck on Long Island when the red tape is cut, if ever.

The entire procedure is a disgusting example of inhospitality following a display of small-country parvenuism. If the United States did not want the United Nations, Ed Stettinius, who represented us in the matter, should have said so. If we do want the United Nations to be situated here, then the State Department should have cleared up all the angles before they came here. There has been too much fussing, too much running here and there. It would have been simpler for us to have picked three specific and available places and to have offered them a choice on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

After all, the League managed in Geneva; the United Nations can make history without all the flourishes that theatrically thrilled Mr. Gavrilovich and his architects. If U.N. finds a road to peace, that organization will be able to have any space it wants here or anywhere. Meanwhile, it needs an efficient, workable home. The monuments can follow when they are won.

As for extraterritoriality, I am told that all they really want is the courtesy given an embassy. If that is all, they ought to have it. That—and no more. This can be certified to: up at Hunter College in the Bronx, U.N. was guarded by the Marine Corps and by American citizens organized in a security corps. Nothing untoward happened. Most of the delegates used hired automobiles with proper license plates. Those who had no license plate—under extraterritorial privilege—ran over no one. In a word, reasonable people acted in a reasonable manner.

This situation ought to be brought to a head, not because it matters whether U.N. stays here or not, but because the process thus far has been childishly unmanly and stupid. This is an hospitable country. When we invite a guest to our country, we treat him decently. We find him bed and board and reading space, to say nothing of a telephone number. When he forgets the obligations of a guest, we act—but until then we make him at home. And that is what we need to do with U.N. in a manner both reasonable and decent. There is ample room in the United States for U.N. so long as no American is being kicked around. (Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TONSILLITIS

It is interesting to watch the history or the treatment of a disease by a new drug or method. At first there is great enthusiasm for the new method until other research workers report little or no success with it. It then seems to gather a new group of enthusiasts to be followed by another drop in enthusiasm until the drug or method of treatment for a disease finds its true place in the opinion of the medical profession.

It is not long ago since it was believed that the sulfa drugs would cure all pneumonia cases to be followed by the knowledge that the sulfa drugs were "life savers" for one type of pneumonia but not for another type.

The most recent report on the value of the sulfa drugs in the treatment of tonsillitis is not so encouraging as were the first reports in which the sulfa drugs appeared to give relief and shorten hospital stay.

In the Ohio State Medical Journal, Dr. H. M. Clodfelter reports experiences of the treatment of severe tonsillitis with and without sulfa drugs. There were 400 cases of streptococcal sore throat selected from 3,000 cases of nose and throat disease severe enough to require hospital treatment. In 41 of the 175 treated with large doses of sulfonamides, the disease ran the same course as the cases which did not receive the sulfonamides and they were discharged on the fifth or sixth day. But in those treated with the sulfonamides there was a second rise in temperature in 134, that is the remainder of the 175.

The sulfonamides caused a prompt drop of temperature and gave some relief from the symptoms, but there is usually a secondary rise in temperature at the very time the cases not treated by the sulfonamides are leaving the hospital for home. The number of days in hospital is thus increased from between 5 and 6 to between 9 and 10. The patients did not feel so well on the tenth day as the cases not treated with sulfonamides did on the fifth.

What is the conclusion of Dr. Clodfelter after his investigation of these cases treated with sulfa drugs?

It seems highly suggestive that the use of the sulfonamides in the treatment of streptococcal tonsillitis (the usual type of tonsillitis) is not only without benefit but actually detrimental to the welfare of the patient.

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The Common Council at its meeting on August 22, 1927, voted unanimously in favor of restoration of the city hall, which had been gutted by fire in June of that year, and appointed Alderman Sam N. Mann, Ray Haines and C. Ray Everett, as a committee to cooperate with Mayor E. J. Dempsey in restoration plans.

The action of the aldermen followed the reading of a report from the city hall commission, who reported that the building could be restored at a cost of $300,000. The committee was composed of three architects, Myron S. Teller, Gerard W. Betz and George E. Lowe, with F. J. R. Clarke, leading banker of the city, as the lay member of the committee.

On August, 1927, the political pot began to boil in Kingston with the Republican city committee re-nominating E. J. Dempsey for mayor, and C. Ray Everett for alderman-at-large, while the Democrats named City Judge Harry E. Schirick for mayor, and Dr. Sam Stern for alderman-at-large.

The election that year was a spirited one, with Mayor Dempsey nosing out Judge Schirick in a closely contested mayoralty race. Judge Schirick, now a Supreme Court justice, was serving as county chairman of the Democrats that year, and had previously announced that if elected mayor he would retire from the chairmanship of the county committee.

The judge was active in local baseball circles, and it will be recalled that in 1921, the judge and the late Lou Bruhn organized the Kingston Colonials, undoubtedly the outstanding ball club in the city's history.

Since the days of the old Colonials, baseball fans have often speculated whether the Colonials would have been able to defeat the City Recreation team, which has represented the city for some years.

Some fans incline to the belief that the Colonials were a faster, better rounded club, and with Bud Culliton on the mound and the late Jack Robins behind the plate, would have easily taken the Recs into camp. Other fans, however, hold an opposite view, and believe the Recs would prove too much for the Colonials.

All such speculation, of course, is merely idle, for no human being has been found who was able to turn back the hands of time and restore the old Colonials to their old time vigor. All of the stars of the 1920's have long ago laid aside their uniforms, and several have since died.

Turning to social affairs, the Kingston Club on August 16, 1927, voted to purchase the old James Van Leuven mansion on Wall street, adjoining the Kingston Savings Bank property.

The club for a number of years had been occupying club rooms on the second floor of the Kingston Trust Co. building on Main street.

For years the Kingston Club has numbered among its members many of the leading business, industrial and professional men of the city.

Recently the club, having disposed of the old Van Leuven property, bought the former Everett Bakery property on Wall street, at Main street, for use as a club house.

Russian Newspapermen Attending A.S.N.E. Meeting in Washington Made Favorable Impression; Translator Forgot One Important Statement

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 23—The three newspapermen from Russia who have been attending the meeting here of the American Society of Newspaper Editors made a favorable impression but it would have been even more if the translator hadn't forgotten to repeat to the audience one of the statements of the Russians.

"The peoples of the two countries," said one of the Russian editors, "really want to get closer together but this isn't always possible because of things at the top level."

Presumably the point was that two governments get entangled in differences which the respective peoples do not relish but are unable to prevent.

From the American viewpoint there is, however, a way to prevent such a contingency. It is to open up wide all questions for public discussion. The Russian form of censorship in peacetime keeps essential information away from the people.

Thus, the three Russian visitors said quite generously that they would like to see more American correspondents coming to Russia, but what the Moscow newspapermen evidently do not know is that their own government has a strict policy about admitting foreign correspondents.

One of the visitors, when told of the delays, thought it might be the bureaucratic red tape which is customary in all countries, and he referred humorously to the delay in admitting the Russian editors themselves through the immigration inspection in New York.

But such delays of a few hours are not to be compared with the difficulties experienced by American newspapers in trying to send correspondents to Moscow.

Great newspapers like the New York Times have encountered no difficulty in getting correspondents into Russia, and the same thing is true of the Chicago Sun, which has been friendly to Russian policies. What is most embarrassing about such delays is that newspapermen mark their correspondence in getting correspondents into Russia, and the same thing is true of the Chicago Sun, which has been friendly to Russian policies.

It does seem possible that Moscow could give a "yes" or "no" answer more promptly as a courtesy to the American newspapers. Sometimes a whole year elapses before an answer is given. Moscow is an important capital. From a news standpoint, it is as important as, if not more important than, either Washington or London.

The American press would send 100 correspondents there tomorrow if the Russians allowed it. Actually there are fewer than a dozen correspondents of all the foreign press, British included, in Moscow today.

With all the outcry in the United States for better understanding between Russia and the United States—and the feeling is widespread and genuine—it would seem that admission of American correspondents to Moscow would be one way to assure better relationships and better understanding.

The Russian newspapermen made a hit with the Americans. They seemed to be sincere and plainly desirous of doing everything in their power to bring about closer relations between the American and the Russian peoples.

But are they free agents? One newspaperman here who speaks Russian told this correspondent that each Russian visitor was accompanied by an observer from the Russian secret police who acts as translator. None of the Russian editors speak or understand English.

With all the disadvantages of the language barrier, it is nevertheless a fine thing that the Russian editors came to the United States. Certainly they addressed an influential gathering of editors of American newspapers and there could be no mistaking the warmth of the reception accorded the Russians every time they made an appearance.

The significant fact is that the Russian and American people could be fast friends. Will the governments be able to maintain that friendship or will the rapidly increasing number of disputed points ultimately wind up in a revelation of both the peoples of the United States and Russia that the governments have not been able to get along with each other? The next few weeks may tell the story for the outlook for a settlement of difficult points is far from bright.

It takes more patience than is generally imagined to be secretary of state these days, and James F. Byrnes appears to be quietly exercising patience, forbearance and restraint. He is endeavoring to work out agreements and adjustments in the face of a bewildering array of unreasonable demands which apparently have little to do with the security of Russia but which have everything to do with the rise of Allied discord in Europe. Fall Milk Output Is Threatened by Dairy Farm Costs

Ithaca, N. Y., April 23—Milk production in recent months does not offer bright prospects for meeting the impending milk shortage this coming fall, Dr. L. C. Cunningham, Cornell agricultural economist, said today.

He pointed out that March production was five per cent below that of March, 1945, but this represented a slight improvement over January and February which were nine and seven per cent lower respectively, than a year ago.

He stated: "These figures and the present dairy farm operating costs indicate how extremely difficult it will be for dairymen to supply the milk needed in the fall months."

The Cornell economist explained that due to more attractive alternative opportunities, there are four per cent fewer dairymen in business than at the beginning of 1945, and 12 per cent less than in 1940. "The number of dairy cows in the state is down about one per cent, and the number of yearling heifers that will be available for replacements next year is about seven per cent under last year's figure."

Rise Continues
In discussing the causes for the downward trends, Professor Cunningham said the farmer's production costs have risen considerably in recent months and are continuing to rise. His figures also show that farm wages have risen 13 per cent and are the highest on record; feed prices have increased 11 per cent and are the highest since the summer of 1920. These two items, wages and feed, he said, are the most important items of expense on dairy farms, but the costs of all dairy farm expenses average eight per cent higher at the beginning of the present crop season.

Wages Higher
"It now takes about 2,160 pounds of milk to pay a month's cash farm wages," said Dr. Cunningham, adding, "this is the highest in history and nearly 50 per cent above the long-time upward trend of farm wages in terms of milk." Because of this situation, hired men, members of farm families, and even farmers themselves are attracted away from dairy farms, he stated.

THINNING BEETS IS WORK, BUT WORTH IT

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association

THINNING crops is a form of reducing exercise that many home vegetable gardeners shy from, but the plants, especially beets, must have room to develop.

Thinning beets is work, but worth it. Young beets should be thinned, regardless of how thinly the seed has been sown.

Do not wait until the young plants have become injured by over-crowding but begin thinning early. The contrast between unthinned and thinned beet plantings is illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

Thinning is best done when the second or third pair of true leaves is showing and the plants are three or four inches tall. If you wait until it is easy to see that the plants are suffering from crowding, the thinning will disturb the roots of those left.

The thinned-out plants can be re-planted in some other section of the garden, or can be used as table greens. The plants which are transplanted will mature about 10 days later than the rows from which they were taken. Whenever possible select an overcast, damp day for transplanting beets.

A good thinning program for all vegetable crops that require such treatment follows:

One inch: Peas, radishes, spinach.

Two inches: Carrots, beets, onions, parsley, turnips.

Two to four inches: Beans, long season beets, kohlrabi, lettuce, parsnips.

Four to six inches: Swiss chard.

Eight inches: Lima beans.

Twelve inches: Corn, and

Shidehara Asks Ruling on Purge Of His Big Rival

Tokyo, April 23 (AP)—Kijuro Shidehara became head of the Progressive Party today and promptly asked an Allied ruling on whether his number one rival for the premiership should be purged.

General MacArthur had maintained a hands-off policy as political leaders prepared to form a coalition cabinet—a move viewed gloomily by an elder statesman, Takao Saito, who predicted a short life for the cabinet and a new election soon.

Shidehara and the cabinet he headed resigned Monday but will continue in office until successors are named.

The elderly political leader assumed the presidency of Progressive Party in preparation for his campaign to retain the premiership. At the same time, he sent Foreign Minister Shigeru Yoshida to Allied headquarters to ask the present status of his chief rival, Liberal Party President Ichiro Hatoyama, who is under investigation for alleged pro-Fascist sympathies.

Yoshida was told to ask if it were permissible to invite Hatoyama to a conference of political leaders to map the coalition government.

Hatoyama is an important position as leader of the party which won most seats in the recent Diet. His disqualification by Allied headquarters could change the political situation radically and greatly improve Shidehara's prospects.

Men's Suit Shortage Gets Top Attention at Capital

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The men's suit shortage moved up for top attention today as the government counted hopefully on new emergency measures to help ease another clothing scarcity—in low-cost cotton apparel.

The Civilian Production Administration reports from 80 manufacturers on why output of inexpensive suits fell nearly a million garments shy of the 3,500,000 goal set for the first three months of this year.

From this spot check the agency expects to learn in the next few days just what new steps may have to be taken to bring production up to schedule. The survey is being made at the insistence of Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, chief of the Re-training and Re-employment Administration. Recently Erskine contended that many veterans have had to turn down jobs because they could not find proper clothing.

On the cotton clothing front, the government turned last night to a combination of price increases and restoration of wartime production controls in the latest of a series of actions to obtain more yarn and fabric for shirts, underwear, pajamas, dresses and work clothing.

The aim is a 50 per cent increase in output of low-cost garments. O.P.A. ordered reinstatement May 1 of a spindle "freeze" which applies to machines producing more than 20 per cent of the nation's cotton yarn. Under the order, which had been dropped last August, spindles diverted to output of less essential yarn must be turned back to important types produced at the end of 1945.

And to make it easier, O.P.A. granted a five per cent "incentive" increase in price ceiling for cotton yarn needed for inexpensive garments. This price hike matches one granted six weeks ago for essential cotton fabrics.

C. P. A. also invoked a set-aside order which is designed, it said, to halt "serious diversion" of cotton yarn from essential clothing and from important industrial and agricultural uses.

This order earmarks from 30 to 85 per cent of certain types of yarn for priority requirements, including low-cost clothing. Another measure fixes minimum production levels which yarn spinners will be required to meet.

In announcing its new controls, C.P.A. said they are necessary because of a 13 per cent decline in yarn output during the last year. It hopes to boost production from a rate of 195,000,000 pounds of yarn during the final three months of 1945 to 235,000,000 million pounds a quarter this year.

Proclamation

Aligning himself with an Act of Congress and a proclamation by President Truman, Mayor Edelmuth of Kingston today officially proclaimed April as Cancer Control Month, and urged the populace of Kingston and of Ulster county to ally themselves with the campaign of the American Cancer Society which is now in progress:

"Whereas statistics indicate that between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day more than twice as many Americans were killed by cancer as were killed or listed missing in action in World War II.

"Whereas cancer has shown itself to be a personal threat to every single one of us—to every single home in America.

"Whereas it has been proven that concerted effort of government, science and public interest, teamed together in the fight, something to check the ravages of this National Killer.

"Therefore I, William F. Edelmuth, Mayor of the city of Kingston, and your personal representative of government, having allied myself with this great cause, do herewith proclaim this month of April Cancer Control Month. Furthermore, during this period from April 1 to April 30, I do also abjure you, the citizenry of Kingston and Ulster county to give your full cooperation and financial support to the American Cancer Society in its campaign to achieve its goal of $12,000,000. Let us through dissemination of knowledge, through treatment centres and through intensified scientific research secure our homes, which are cornerstones of our nation, against this devastating enemy of our public health."

Sleeping Sickness Menaces Americans

Washington, April 23 (AP)—A form of sleeping sickness is menacing American occupation troops on Okinawa, but a vaccine designed to combat it is under study.

Commodore T. M. Rivers of the Navy's Medical Corps told the National Academy of Sciences yesterday that Navy doctors got first-hand information on the disease—called Japanese Bencephalitis—during an epidemic among natives last summer. He added:

"The disease is extraordinarily disagreeable and can be highly fatal. It is a menace to our occupation troops because it occurs each summer on Okinawa."

Rivers later told reporters that while there is no specific treatment for the disease, a vaccine has been developed and is now being appraised as a possible protective weapon. He offered no details.

The Okinawan form of sleeping sickness causes victims to suffer a brain inflammation.

Only Few Veterans Are Interested in Building Trades
Troy, N. Y., April 22—Prof. Harold N. Chamberlain of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute is beginning to wonder who is going to do the work on all the new homes that countless families want to build or, for that matter, on the repairs and alterations that patient householders have been waiting so long to get done.
Professor Chamberlain directs R.P.I.'s educational and vocational advisement for the Veterans Administration in behalf of veterans who apply for training at college or lower levels under the G. I. Bill of Rights and Veterans Public Health Law 16. He says:
"Of the first 1,000 veterans receiving educational and vocational advisement here, only seven per cent of those applying for training in the building trades were interested in the building trades. Why so few want to be carpenters, masons, painters, or plumbers is difficult to understand when the demand for them, already heavy, will be much heavier.
"It looks bad not only for the householder who has been waiting for the postwar period in order to get some repairs or alterations done but also for the family eager to build a new home, even though more materials become available.
Building trades unions are worried about the situation too, Chamberlain pointed out.
"Union representatives have urged us to try to interest veterans in the building trades, where the number of apprentices has been small for years," he said. "We were told that in some building trades unions, the average age of the members was 50 years, and that unless some younger men got in there soon wouldn't be enough left to train apprentices.
"On the other hand," he continued, "so many veterans want to be radio mechanics and refrigerators and air conditioning mechanics that there is danger that these fields will be overcrowded. I'm afraid that this attraction is based too much upon merely the idea of getting into something new."

More than 400,000 youngsters and adults were trained in swimming and water safety courses by Red Cross instructors in 1945.

2. There is an error in today's picture and I wonder, students, if you can spot it. Yes, sir, it's the position of the clubhead at this stage of the swing. The hands have scarcely reached the shoulder-high position. This player has started cocking his hands too soon with the result that the clubhead is already more than perpendicular. The clubshaft should not have reached this position until the player's hands were head high. The result will be that he will overswing which means that at the top of the backswing the shaft will have passed too far below the horizontal. The dotted line shows the position the shaft should occupy at the top of the swing but this player is going to overswing. Overswinging is paid for in loss of rhythm and timing. It is nearly impossible for the backswing to get the clubhead back to the ball at the correct mechanical instant. Usually, unless he's a very expert player, the hands will reach the ball ahead of the clubhead, producing a slice. (Protected by John F. Dille Co.)

SCOREBOARD

By JACK HANDED

(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Max Lanier, a perennial runner-up, is fast becoming the ace of the St. Louis Cardinals' all-star pitching staff after years of playing second fiddle to such big names as Mort Cooper, Lon Warneke and Curt Davis.

Lanier Is Impressive

The chunky left-hander from Denton, N. C., back from a tour of army duty, has won his first two starts in most impressive fashion to set the pace for the high-flying Red Birds' five-game winning streak. When Lanier first came to the big show in 1938, Davis was one of the fellows who hogged the headlines. The Warneke regime covered 1940 and 1941 when Ernie White first rocketed into the picture. Then came Cooper who reigned from 1942 until he was soiled to Boston last spring.

Lanier might have made the No. 1 spot last year but arm trouble bothered him in the early spring and in May he went into the army. Although he was a holdout this spring, Lanier reported to the St. Petersburg camp bright and early and has pitched himself into excellent condition. The left-hander's first effort was a shutout over Pittsburgh on the second day of the season and yesterday he turned back Cincinnati, 4-1, with six hits. Johnny Vander Meer was the loser.

Despite Lanier's chucking and the Cards' fifth straight triumph, they were unable to shake off the persistent Brooklyn Dodgers who likewise ran their win streak to five by shading Boston, 5-4, in 10 innings.

Vets Win for Dodgers

The Dodgers had to call on some of their veteran hired hands to keep them in a first place tie with St. Louis. Pete Reiser's second double of the day drove in the two tying runs in the ninth and Billy Herman belted a single to break it up in the first over-time. Hugh Casey, a refugee from the 1941 pennant club, picked up the victory on relief at the expense of Don Herrickson.

The New York Giants resumed relations with the Phillies and got back on the winning side, 7-6, coming from behind to tie the starter Tommy Hughes and blasting Fireman Hugh Mulcahy for the winning margin. Babe Young and Johnny Mize had perfect days at the plate but Manager Mel Ott had to call in Mike Budnick to save a second straight victory for pitcher Bob Joyce when the Phils came within one of a tie in the ninth.

Detroit found reason to rejoice in the excellent debut of Paul (Dizzy) Trout who blanked Chicago's White Sox, 4-0, with six blows. The Dizzy one had been troubled by an aching back last summer but showed no traces of any ailment in handcuffing the pale horse.

Floyd Bevins made his first start winning one in hurling the New York Yankees to a 2-1 "squeaker" over Philadelphia's Luther Knerr. Joe DiMaggio tied the game with a triple in the sixth and scored the winning run on Charley Keller's single a few moments later.

Homers for Sox

Shortstop Eddie Pellagrini, who got his chance to play when Johnny Pesky was hit by a pitched ball in an early inning, won the game for Boston over Washington, 5-4, with a seventh-inning home run. Bobby Doerr and Rudy York also hit for the circuit off Sid Hudson to make it easier for Lefty Mickey Harris to notch his second straight triumph.

Although Chicago and Pittsburgh in the National and Cleveland and St. Louis in the American were not scheduled the total attendance for the first complete week of play soared to 1,008,422 with the help of amazing Monday turnouts of 24,902 at Brooklyn and 23,407 at the Yankee Stadium.

American League

Philadelphia at New York—Knott (0-0) or Flores (0-1) vs. Gumpert (0-1).

Detroit at Chicago—Benton (1-0) vs. Dietrich (0-1).

Cleveland at St. Louis—Embree (0-0) vs. Galehouse (0-1).

Washington at Boston—Masterman (0-1) vs. E. Johnson (1-0).

National League

New York at Philadelphia—Feldman (0-1) vs. Judd (0-1) or Hoerst (0-1).

Chicago at Pittsburgh—Passeau (0-0) vs. Albosta (0-0).

The situation, however, may be slightly changed as "Red" Gorsline may get the starting mound assignment which would put Tex Brown on third and Mike Riengo at short. Should Dick Scherer or one of the other newcomers listed as a twirler draw the starting chore, Tex Brown would go to the outfield leaving the infield intact. Unless any one shows up exceptionally well, all pitchers can figure on seeing some action.

Count on Newcomers

The newcomers this year are the most encouraging factors in the season. DUBO hopes. Malmes and Lesick, rookies, and Mike Riengo, a shown good stuff in practice, and Coach Hatch is counting on them. Bobby Roe in the outfield was out last year but did not see any action. His hitting has been an important factor in landing a varsity berth.

The catching department seems to be the one spot on the local nine although Les Havens, a rookie, and Chris Lay, a sub last year, have shown some promise. The departure of Bill Glaser for a minor league training camp has left a wide gap in the Maroon ranks.

Kingston's infield should be its strongest point with first base well covered by Bill Crosby, Ed Weaver on hand for assistance, George Glaser, brother of Bill, has second base to himself while "Red" Gorsline, an outfielder last year, is among the best of the candidates for the shortstop post. Gorsline also figures in the pitching department. Mike Riengo, a Jayvee Man last year, is in for either the third base or short stop post with Tex Brown set as a good utility man at third base, on the mound or in the outfield.

The outfield has last year's freshman star, Dick Dulin in right. Ken Lowe, who showed great promise last season in center, and Bobby Roe in left.

The exact strength of the Arlington team is not known but Coach Hatch remarked with a smile, "They wouldn't take us on so early in the season if they didn't have something to show us. However, I'm counting on the boys to put up a respectable showing."

Lost Ships Replaced

The cost of building merchant ships has doubled since prewar days, a New Zealand shipping company has learned, in placing orders with British builders for ships to replace those sunk during the war. Auckland reports. Six large and two smaller freighters to cost about $28,000,000 have been ordered by this and another company. They will be used to carry commodities to Britain and dairy products from New Zealand to Australia. The two companies owned 37 large refrigerated liners but lost 18 during wartime.

Tex Brown Likely Starter on Hill; Lineup Unsettled

Coach Pete Hatch Plays Poor Training Grounds; Fourteen Players Will Make Trip

Kingston High's 1946 baseball squad inaugurates its spring campaign tomorrow afternoon at Arlington when they stack up against Coach Fritz Jordan's Dutchess county squad. Game time is slated for 2:15 and both coaches are skeptical about their respective team's chances.

Transportation difficulties limit Coach Pete Hatch to the use of 14 men for tomorrow's tilt which means that a few boys won't be given their baptism of fire until the first stadium contest May 3 when Middletown furnishes DUSO competition.

Action for All

The Maroon mentor was unable to give his starting lineup but announced that he figured on using all of the 14 boys that would accompany the team. The varsity was set to practice at the municipal stadium today in the final pre-game warmup. Previously to this, the Maroon hopefuls had been working out at Hasbrouck Park.

"It was set up this spring has been very poor," Coach Hatch told a reporter, "since we've had comparatively few practices and no decent field to hold them on. It's impossible to give every candidate a fair chance with such limited facilities which means that several good ball players may have been passed up. However, tomorrow's game will give us some idea as to how the boys look and since we are moving up to the stadium this week, I hope that the situation will improve."

The 14 boys listed by Coach Hatch to make Wednesday's trip are: Bill Crosby, Ed Weaver, George Glaser, Red Gorsline, Mike Riengo, infielders: Dick Dulin, Ken Lowe, Bobby Roe, outfielders: Chris Lay and Les Havens, catchers: Tex Brown, Dick Scherer, Clark Malmes, and Len Lesick, pitchers.

Although he didn't announce the starting lineup, the Maroon mentor seemed to think that the following would be in there to inaugurate the 1946 season: Bill Crosby, first base; George Glaser, second; "Red" Gorsline at short; Mike Riengo, third; Dick Dulin, Ken Lowe and Bobby Roe in the outer gardens; Chris Lay behind the plate, and Tex Brown on the mound.

The situation, however, may be slightly changed as "Red" Gorsline may get the starting mound assignment which would put Tex Brown on third and Mike Riengo at short. Should Dick Scherer or one of the other newcomers listed as a twirler draw the starting chore, Tex Brown would go to the outfield leaving the infield intact. Unless any one shows up exceptionally well, all pitchers can figure on seeing some action.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 23, 1946

FIRE CONTROL HERE

Kingston's record fire prevention and control during the past year was considerably better than that shown by most of the nation's cities over 20,000 population, on the basis of data gathered by the National Fire Protection Association from 485 cities.

Fires in Kingston destroyed property valued at $51,717 during the year, a loss equivalent to $1.81 for every man, woman and child. It compares favorably in rate with $2.66 per capita average loss reported by the other cities.

The local fire department's effectiveness is shown by the fact that the 153 building fires in the city in 1945 were quickly controlled and damage held to a minimum. The average loss per fire was $338 compared with $640 in other cities.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy states that the danger from fire is on the increase and he exhorts householders promptly discard old papers and all other accumulations in the attics, cellars and closets.

In order to maintain this record, all citizens must cooperate in eliminating fire hazards. The individuals, in most instances, must provide the prevention that will forestall calamity.

In its report the Association notes as a regrettable waste of fire protection facilities, the large number of deliberate, malicious false alarms with which each fire department has to cope.

TRAGIC DELAY

It is a rather common procedure to "take the will for the deed." People read in the newspapers about some necessary thing to be done for human welfare and say to themselves: "Yes, of course, this must be done." Then they forget about it, under the pressure of daily life and work, or assume that it has been done.

But some do not forget. Among them is Leland B. Henry, executive director of the Commission on Christian Social Relations of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, who reminds the American public of such facts as these:

Large areas of European farm land will go untillied this year because men are too weak from hunger to till them.

The President at Washington has shown that this nation is 12,000,000 bushels short of fulfilling its export commitments for the first quarter of 1946.

One "wheatless day" per week, urged so generally that many people seem to think it has already been done, is not yet established, though its establishment would be fairly simple.

Apparently many well-meaning people are telling what to do, but few or none are setting up the practical machinery to do it. Thus many starve in Europe, and millions "exist on a level of bare existence." Surely, in so rich and generous a nation as ours, this is unnecessary.

NAMES THAT DRAW

What's in a name? Everything, the late Charles F. Hurley would have said. Elected three times state treasurer of Massachusetts, he went on to the governorship in 1937 and 1938. Nothing so remarkable in this, perhaps. But he has had three successors as state treasurer, all of whom are named Hurley.

Massachusetts is not alone in showing the drawing powers of a popular name. George Olsen obtained the Democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska in 1944, over the opposition of the party leaders, and despite the fact that he was a waiter and politically unknown. His Scandinavian name is generally thought to be the reason. In Ohio, where one Day family has produced several eminent jurists, any lawyer bearing that name, however unrelated, is said to be reasonably sure of being elected to the bench.

It is not always racial kinship. Often voters confuse the candidate with some one whom they know. A generation ago Cincinnati boasted of three well-known John C. Hoffmans, in different circles of life. When

GIVE U.N. A HOME

The United Nations was encouraged by our government to make its home in the United States. Geneva would have made better sense, but the Russians objected to Geneva because the League found Russia guilty of making war on Finland. Therefore, the League could not be continued and everything connected with it, including the city of Geneva, its lake, the League palace became interdicted.

So they decided on the United States and sent a Commission headed by a Yugoslav, Stoyan Gavrilovich, here to find a temporary and a permanent site. Gavrilovich acted, from the American standpoint, extraordinarily. He passed about the place like a conquering hero. He outlined a grandiose area of 40 square miles of the best suburbs in the country. He gave an interview to the press in which he offended some of our most honored citizens. Americans in Connecticut and New York wondered when they would be summarily thrown out of their homes—some held by families for centuries. Gavrilovich was so brusque and imperious that U.N.—then called U.N.O.—left a bad taste.

And the worst fear of all was extraterritoriality, a system which puts a state within a state; which provides an enclave outside the law, where every form of impropriety and lawlessness could flourish as it did in cities like Shanghai, Tientsin and Hankow. And neither the police of the state nor the F.B.I. could do anything about it.

Since then, U.N. has been a homeless orphan in our country. It was put temporarily in Hunter College where it should not have been put at all. Now, it is being moved to the World Fair Grounds in the Flushing Meadows to the annoyance of ice-skaters. The offices are scattered, but are to be concentrated in the Sperry Plant near Great Neck on Long Island when the red tape is cut, if ever.

The entire procedure is a disgusting example of inhumanity following a display of small-country parvenuism. If the United States did not want the United Nations, Ed Stettinius, who represented us in the matter, should have said so. If we do want the United Nations to be situated here, then the State Department should have cleared up all the angles before they came here. There has been too much fussing, too much running here and there. It would have been simpler for us to have picked three specific and available places and to have offered them a choice on a take-it-or-leave-it basis.

After all, the League managed in Geneva; the United Nations can make history without all the flourishes that theatrically thrilled Mr. Gavrilovich and his architects. If U.N. finds a road to peace, that organization will be able to have any space it wants here or anywhere. Meanwhile, it needs an efficient, workable home. The monuments can follow when they are won.

As for extraterritoriality, I am told that all they really want is the courtesy given an embassy. If that is all, they ought to have it. That—and no more. This can be certified to: up at Hunter College in the Bronx, U.N. was greeted by the Marine Corps and by American citizens organized in a security corps. Nothing untoward happened. Most of the delegates used hired automobiles with proper license plates. Those who had no license plate—under extraterritorial privilege—ran over no one. In a word, reasonable people acted in a reasonable manner.

This situation ought to be brought to a head, not because it matters whether U.N. stays here or not, but because the process thus far has been childishly unmanly and stupid. This is an inhospitable country. When we invite a guest to our country, we treat him decently. We find him bed and board and reading space, to say nothing of a telephone number. When he forgets the obligations of a guest, we act—but until then we make him at home. And that is what we need to do with U.N. in a manner both reasonable and decent. There is ample room in the United States for U.N.—so long as no American is being kicked around. (Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

TONSILLITIS

It is interesting to watch the history or the treatment of a disease by a new drug or method. At first there is great enthusiasm for the new method until other research workers report little or no success with it. It then seems to gather a new group of enthusiasts to be followed by another drug in enthusiasm until the drug or method of treatment for a disease finds its true place in the opinion of the medical profession.

It is not long ago since it was believed that the sulfa drugs would cure all pneumonia cases to be followed by the knowledge that the sulfa drugs were "life savers" for one type of pneumonia but not for another type.

The most recent report on the value of the sulfa drugs in the treatment of tonsillitis is not so encouraging as were the first reports in which the sulfa drugs appeared to give relief and shorten hospital stay.

In the Ohio State Medical Journal, Dr. H. M. Ciofflet reports experiences of the treatment of severe tonsillitis with and without sulfa drugs. There were 400 cases of streptococcal sore throat selected from 3,000 cases of nose and throat disease severe enough to require hospital treatment. In 41 of the 175 treated with large doses of sulfonamides, the disease ran the same course as the cases which did not receive the sulfonamides and they were discharged on the fifth or sixth day. But in those treated with the sulfonamides there was a second rise in temperature in 134, that is the remainder of the 175.

The sulfonamides caused a prompt drop of temperature and gave some relief from the symptoms, but there is usually a secondary rise in temperature the very time the cases not treated by the sulfonamides are leaving the hospital for home. The number of days in hospital is thus increased from between 5 and 6 to between 9 and 10. The patients did not feel so well on the tenth day as the cases not treated with sulfonamides did on the fifth.

What is the conclusion of Dr. Ciofflet after his investigation of these cases treated with sulfa drugs?

"It seems highly suggestive that the use of the sulfonamides in the treatment of streptococcal tonsillitis (the usual type of tonsillitis) is not only without benefit but actually detrimental to the welfare of the patient."

"At Century's Turn"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The Common Council at its meeting on August 22, 1927, voted unanimously in favor of restoration of the city hall, which had been gutted by fire in June of that year, and appointed Alderman Sam N. Mann, Ray Haines and C. Ray Everett, as a committee to cooperate with Mayor E. J. Dempsey in restoration plans.

The action of the aldermen followed the reading of a report from the city hall commission, who reported that the building could be restored at a cost of $300,000. The committee was composed of three architects, Myron S. Teller, Gerard W. Betz and George E. Lowe, with F. J. R. Clarke, leading banker of the city, as the lay member of the committee.

On August 1927, the political pot began to boil in Kingston with the Republican city committee re-nominating E. J. Dempsey for mayor, and C. Ray Everett for alderman-at-large, while the Democrats named City Judge Harry E. Schirick for mayor, and Dr. Sam Stern for alderman-at-large.

The election that year was a spirited one, with Mayor Dempsey nosing out Judge Schirick in a closely contested mayoralty race.

Judge Schirick, now a Supreme Court justice, was serving as county chairman of the Democrats that year, and had previously announced that if elected mayor he would retire from the chairmanship of the county committee.

The judge was active in local baseball circles, and it will be recalled that in 1921, the judge and the late Lou Bruhn organized the Kingston Colonials, undoubtedly the outstanding ball club in the city's history.

Since the days of the old Colonials, baseball fans have often speculated whether the Colonials would have been able to defeat the City Recreation team, which has represented the city for some years.

Some fans incline to the belief that the Colonials were a faster, better rounded club, and with Bud Culliton on the mound and the late Jack Robins behind the plate, would have easily taken the Recreation camp. Other fans, however, hold an opposite view, and believe the Recreationists would prove too much for the Colonials.

All such speculation, of course, is merely idle, for no human being has been found who was able to turn back the hands of time and restore the old Colonials to their old time vigor. All of the stars of the 1920's have long ago laid aside their uniforms, and several have since died.

Turning to social affairs the Kingston Club on August 16, 1927, voted to purchase the old James Van Leuven mansion on Wall street, adjoining the Kingston Savings Bank property.

The club for a number of years had been occupying club rooms on the second floor of the Kingston Trust Co. building on Main street.

For years the Kingston Club has numbered among its members many of the leading business, industrial and professional men of the city.

Russian Newspapersmen Attending A.S.N.E. Meeting in Washington Made Favorable Impression; Translator Forget One Important Statement

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 23—The three newspapermen from Russia who have been attending the meeting here of the American Society of Newspaper Editors made a favorable impression but it would have been even more if the translator hadn't forgotten to repeat to the audience one of the statements of the Russians.

"The peoples of the two countries," said one of the Russian editors "really want to get closer together, but this isn't always possible because of things at the top level."

Presumably the point was that two governments get entangled in differences which the respective peoples do not relish but are unable to prevent.

From the American viewpoint there is, however, a way to prevent such a contingency. It is to open up wide all questions for public discussion. The Russian form of censorship in peacetime keeps essential information away from the people.

Thus, the three Russian visitors said quite generously that they would like to see more American correspondents coming to Russia, but what the Moscow newspapermen evidently do not know is that their own government has a strict policy about admitting foreign correspondents.

One of the visitors, when told of the delays, thought it might be the bureaucratic red tape which is customary in all countries, and he referred humorously to the delay in admitting the Russian editors themselves through the immigration inspection in New York.

But such delays of a few hours are not to be compared with the difficulties experienced by American newspapers in trying to send correspondents to Moscow.

Great newspapers like the New York Times have encountered long delays in getting correspondents into Russia, and the same thing is true of the Chicago Sun, which has been friendly to Russian policies. What is most embarrassing about such delays is that newspapers must keep their correspondents marking time in London or Berlin for months while they wait for the desired permission.

It does seem possible that Moscow could give a "yes" or "no" answer more promptly as a courtesy to the American newspapers. Sometimes a whole year elapses before an answer is given. Moscow is an important capital. From a news standpoint, it is as important as, if not more important than, either Washington or London.

The American press would send 100 correspondents there tomorrow if the Russians allowed it. Actually there are fewer than a dozen correspondents of all the foreign press, British included, in Moscow today.

With all the outcry in the United States for better understanding between Russia and the United States—and the feeling is widespread and genuine—it would seem that admission of American correspondents to Moscow would be one way to assure better relationships and better understanding.

The Russian newspapermen made a hit with the American editors. They seemed to be sincere and plainly desirous of doing everything in their power to bring about closer relations between the American and the Russian peoples. But are they free agents? One newspaperman here who speaks Russian told this correspondent that each Russian visitor was accompanied by an observer who was the Russian secret police officer as translator. None of the Russian editors speak or understand English.

With all the disadvantages of the language barrier, it is nevertheless a fine thing that the Russian editors came to the United States. Certainly they addressed an influential gathering of editors of American newspapers and these editors are not mistaking the warmth of the reception accorded the Russians every time they made an appearance.

The significant fact is that the Russian and American people could be fast friends. Will the governments be able to maintain that friendship or will the rapidly increasing number of disputed points ultimately wind up in a revelation to both the peoples of the United States and Russia that their governments have not been able to get along with each other? The next few weeks may tell the story, for the outlook for a settlement of difficult points is far from bright.

It takes more patience than generally imagined to be successful at these days, and James J. Byrnes appears to be quietly exercising patience, forbearance and restraint. He is endeavoring to work out agreements and adjustments in the face of a bewildering array of unreasonable demands which apparently have little to do with the security of Russia but which have everything to do with the peace of Allied discord in Europe. helters, that will be available for replacements next year is about seven per cent under last year's figure.

Rise Continues
 In discussing the causes for the increase in milk prices, Dr. C. Cunningham said the farmer's production costs have risen considerably in recent months and are continuing to rise. His figures also show that farm wages have risen 12 per cent and are the highest on record; feed prices have increased 11 per cent and are the highest since the summer of 1930. These two items, wages and feed, he said, are the most important items of expense on dairy farms, the average eight per cent higher at the beginning of the present season.

He pointed out that March production was five per cent below that of March, 1945, but this represented a slight improvement over January and February which were nine and seven per cent lower respectively, than a year ago.

He stated: "These figures and the present dairy farm operating costs indicate how extremely difficult it will be for dairymen to supply the milk needed in the fall months."

The Cornell economist explained that, due to more attractive alternative opportunities, there are four per cent fewer dairymen in business than at the beginning of 1945, and 12 per cent less than in 1940. "The number of dairy cows in the state is down about one per cent, and the number of yearling

 "It now takes about 110 pounds of milk to pay a month's cash farm wages," said Dr. Cunningham, adding, "this is the highest in history and nearly 5 per cent above the long-time upward trend of farm wages in terms of milk." Because of this situation, hired men, members of farm families, and even farmers themselves are attracted away from dairy farms, he stated.

Speculation About Stone's Successor

ing a tax on sale of religious literature were unconstitutional. In two other historic dissents Stone objected sharply to majority opinions invalidating the Agricultural Adjustment Act and a New York law establishing minimum wages for women.

Stone's early new deal legislation before the high tribunal was for him the reputation of being a "Liberal." Mr. Roosevelt, a Democrat, later elevated him to the chief justice of the United States on October 6, 1941.

Only Eight-Man Court
During Stone's last term he had only an eight-man court. Jackson had been prosecuting Nazi leaders at Nuremberg and is not expected to return until the next term in October.

Stone's death now leaves to the other Democratic president the selection of a court leader who can break the recent 4-4 impasse in various cases.

On the day of the Chief Justice's death the court made known it was unable to agree on four more cases on which it had heard argument. This indicated a 4-4 split. The court now has stalled in this manner on 16 cases. It called for reargument on each after Jackson's return.

Mr. Truman's only appointee to the court is Harold H. Burton, former senator from Ohio and the only Republican remaining on the bench. Patterson's name figured prominently in the speculation following Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts' retirement last summer.

Selection of the War Secretary, however, would present Mr. Truman with the problem of finding a successor in the cabinet. Hence some senators said they thought some Republican colleagues Warren R. Austin of Vermont or Homer Ferguson of Michigan might enter the picture. Austin, however, is 68 years old.

Ferguson, who is 11 years younger, was a member of the investigating committee Mr. Truman headed as a senator, and the two are close friends.

Was 12th Chief Justice
Stone was the 12th chief justice of the United States and the third to serve as both associate and chief justice. The others were Edward Douglas White and Charles Evans Hughes.

Stone lived to see the death or retirement of all the members of the so-called "old guard" of the judicial body denounced by Mr.

furnished music for assembly dancing until 1 o'clock in the morning.

The first act was Frank Banta and Sam Herman, pianist and xylophonist. Mr. Herman at the xylophone displayed his technique using four as well as two hammers. Their arrangement included "Bells of St. Mary," "Tico, Tico," and "For Two." Mr. Banta played several piano numbers such as "The Atchison, Topeka, and the Santa Fe" and "Till the End of Time."

Arthur Ward was the juggler with the show displaying his skill with large colored hoops which he could roll off his head and back as well as tossing six at one time into the air. He could also tap dance and juggle balls at the same time.

Mr. Toman in addition to his "emceeing" sang some of the popular songs including a medley from "Oklahoma," "If I Loved You" from "Carousel" and "O! Man River" from "Showboat." To climax his act he invited Frank Strobel from the audience to assist him. Using Mr. Strobel as "Charlie McCarthy," he pretended to be Edgar Bergen in a witty skit.

Tarzan Novelty
Something different was the presentation of Jack Holst of Hollywood, the man who does the trapeze work for Johnny Weissmuller in the Tarzan movies. Horizontal bars decorated with palms were set up in the center of the floor. Tarzan appropriately made his entrance by swinging down a rope from the auditorium's balcony. His work on the bars was one of the highlights of the evening as he exhibited perfect timing and control in the graceful turns, leaps, spins and somersaults. He was assisted by Milady and Cheeta who was found to be the girl of the hour.

The show closed with Heddy Joyce's "Three Kewpie Dolls." Any of the three would balance the scale well above average and the ballet type ruffled dresses added to the illusion. After the first laughter had subsided the "dolls" demonstrated the "Bumps a Daisy" dance. Not receiving any willing replies when they asked for partners in this dance, the girls immediately commandeered three young men from the audience: Doug Meyers, Charles Neff, ex-army captain and Charles Martini, petty officer second class, navy.

Cyprus Temple Featured
Proceeding the entertainment the Cyprus Temple Band of Albany gave a concert. The Arab Patrol of Cyprus Temple gave an exhibition of marching and drilling. This was most colorful as the men were dressed in the full Turkish style yellow satin trousers, red sashes and fezzes and green velvet jackets.

Gordon Craig of the local lodge welcomed the audience and visiting temple members. He introduced the leaders of the visitors: E. Harold Gale, illustrious potentate; Edward Henderson, chief rabbon; Ralph Lansing, high priest and prophet; Rollin Thomas, recorder; Fred Nicolson, director general and past potentate; Herb Morris, chief of patrol and Major Redding, captain of patrol, all of Albany.

Roosevelt in 1937 as "living in the horse and buggy days." Stone could have retired at 70, with full pay of $20,500 a year, but he preferred to stick to what he called "doing business at the old stand." The other members of his so-called "liberal wing" on the old court—Justices Brandeis and Cardozo—went to their graves while the aging Stone continued to turn out more work than his younger colleagues. Death also claimed Justices Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler. The retired Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and retired Justices Roberts and McReynolds survive Stone.

Mr. Truman's description of Stone as "a great jurist and a great American" was echoed in many other tributes. Hughes, the retired chief justice, said he was "inexpressibly shocked" and asserted the country had suffered "an irreparable loss."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader of the Senate, said the character of Stone's service "set a noble example for Americans in public and private life."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) termed his death "a disaster."

(By The Associated Press)
Harlan Fiske Stone, a New England Republican, was appointed chief justice of the United States by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, after the jurist had gained a national reputation as a "liberal" while serving as associate justice for 16 years.

This was the second time in American history that President of one political party had elevated to the nation's highest judicial post an associate justice who adhered to another political party. President William Howard Taft, a Republican, had done it in 1910 when he nominated Justice Edward Douglas White, a Democrat, to be chief justice.

Despite his Republican label, he had been one of the leading court supporters of Roosevelt administration legislation when he was appointed chief justice on June 12, 1941.

He succeeded Charles Evans Hughes, who retired at the age of 79 because of "considerations of health and age."

No Feeling of Elation
In a characteristic statement, he had this to say when informed of the nomination: "I don't know whether one should feel gratification at assuming such large responsibilities. It is the kind of recognition any man would appreciate. The responsibility is so great that it doesn't create any sense of elation."

The jurist knew what tremendous responsibilities the position of Chief Justice entailed. Although work had been to him almost a religion, he realized he was taking on a heavier burden as presiding officer and directing head of the high tribunal.

His belief that law was "a human institution for human needs" impelled him to attempt to decide cases in the light of practical economic and social experience. This required that he delve exhaustively into the ramified background of litigation.

To do this he called without stint upon enormous physical resources built up in his youth by work on a New Hampshire farm and by playing center rush for the Amherst College football team.

In later years he became a member of President Herbert Hoover's "medicine ball cabinet"—a group of intimate friends who met at the White House frequently to keep in physical condition by tossing a medicine ball.

He also obtained physical work-outs during the summer by rowing a boat at his island home in Maine. Fishing was another thing that contributed to his relaxation.

Judicial Appearance
Sitting on the bench in his black

robe, he presented an imposing appearance. He truly was judicial looking.

Inclined to be stout, he was above average height. His face was round and an unruly lock of hair frequently fell over his right eye. His brow at times became corrugated as he puzzled over complicated points of law presented by attorneys.

Customarily he was genial in his relations with counsel arguing before the tribunal. But he sometimes employed stern methods with lawyers who evaded questions or wandered persistently from the issues of the litigation.

His appointment as Associate Justice in 1925 by President Calvin Coolidge, who attended Amherst College at the same time, was denounced by some "liberals" on the ground that Stone had been a "Wall Street lawyer"—a member of a firm headed by a son-in-law of the elder J. P. Morgan.

Famous Dissenter
It was not long, however, before those famous words "Justices Holmes, Brandeis and Stone dissent" resounded frequently in the Supreme Court to astound Stone's former critics. These three noted "liberals" thus registered opposition to majority opinions with which they could not agree.

After gaining a reputation as a dissenter, Stone usually found himself on the majority side in important cases beginning with the 1936-37 term. It was at this time that the trend of Supreme Court decisions shifted from anti-Roosevelt administration to pro-administration.

Before his Supreme Court service, he had spent only 11 months in public office—as attorney general in the Coolidge administration. He was picked by Coolidge to reorganize the justice department following the turbulent tenure of Harry M. Daugherty during the Warren G. Harding administration.

Previously he had been dean of the Columbia University Law School and had practiced his profession in New York city.

Born on a Farm
He was born October 11, 1872, on a farm near Chesterfield, New Hampshire, the son of Frederic Lauson and Ann Butler Stone.

He obtained a B.S. degree at Amherst in 1894, taught school two years, returned for an M.A. degree at Amherst in 1897, took an LL.B. degree from Columbia Law School in 1898 and was admitted to the New York bar in the same year.

He returned to Chesterfield on September 7, 1899, and married Miss Agnes Harvey. He said once that he had visited her the first time when she was one day old. Two sons were born to them, Marshall and Lauson. Marshall became professor of mathematics at Harvard University. Lauson practiced law in New York.

Famous Dissents
Two of Stone's dissenting opinions while associate justice were widely quoted and friends of the jurist claimed they contributed greatly toward swinging public sentiment in favor of more "liberal" interpretation of constitutional questions.

These 1936 dissents voiced straight-from-the-shoulder opposition to majority decisions invalidating the Roosevelt administration's Agricultural Adjustment Act (A.A.A.) and a New York law establishing minimum wages for women.

In the A.A.A. dissent, he asserted that "while unconstitutional exercises of power by the executive and legislative branches of the government are subject to judicial restraint, the only check upon our own exercise of power is our own sense of self-restraint."

In the other, he said it was "difficult to imagine any grounds" for the majority opinion "other than our own personal economic predilections."

These statements emphasized his strong belief that the federal government and the states should be permitted to experiment with social and economic legislation in their efforts to produce a more abundant life. "Courts," he contended, "are concerned only with the power to enact statutes, not with their wisdom."

The funeral of Chief Justice Stone will be held at 2 p. m. (E.S.T.) Thursday in the Washington Cathedral.

Burial will be made in a Washington cemetery, still to be selected.

Thomas E. Waggaman, Supreme Court marshal, said no other details have been completed.

be expected to act in accordance with that need. More favorable can be expected for buildings in a new community.

Veterans are restricted in construction programs the same as a non-veteran. The basis of the order is the use of materials, not the nature of the person who uses them.

The March 26 order does not apply to jobs that were started before that date and which have already included the integral parts of the building. This proviso refers to such phases as concrete footings, steel girders, foundation, brick work, when actually put in place on the site.

The small job exemptions under the act are briefly $400 for a house, $1,000 for a hotel, church, commercial or farm building, $15,000 for a factory.

If partitions have been torn out, etc. for remodeling of a building, authorization is required unless the cost of the entire remodeling job comes within the small job exemption.

Shidehara Asks Ruling on Purge of His Big Rival

Tokyo, April 23 (AP)—Kijuro Shidehara became head of the Progressive Party today and promptly asked an Allied ruling on whether his number one rival for the premiership should be purged.

General MacArthur had maintained a hands-off policy as political leaders prepared to form a coalition cabinet—a move viewed gloomily by an elder statesman, Takao Saito, who predicted short life for the cabinet and a new election soon.

Shidehara and the cabinet he headed resigned Monday but will continue in office until successors are named.

The elderly political leader assumed the presidency of Progressive Party in preparation for his campaign to retain the premiership. At the same time, he sent Foreign Minister Shigeru Yoshida to Allied headquarters to ask the present status of his chief rival, Liberal Party President Ichiro Hatoyama, who is under investigation for alleged pro-Fascist sympathies.

Yoshida was told to ask if it were permissible to invite Hatoyama to a conference of political leaders to map the coalition government.

Hatoyama is an important position as leader of the party which won most seats in the new Diet. His disqualification by Allied headquarters could change the political situation radically and greatly improve Shidehara's prospects.

Bowels are regular now, gas and headaches are gone and he feels like a new man.

Men's Suit Shortage Gets Top Attention at Capital

Washington, April 23 (AP)—The men's suit shortage moved up for top attention today as the government counted hopefully on new emergency measures to help ease another clothing scarcity—in low-cost cotton apparel.

The Civilian Production Administration reports from 80 manufacturers on why output of inexpensive suits fell nearly a million garments shy of the 3,500,000 goal set for the first three months of this year.

From this spot check the agency expects to learn in the next few days just what new steps may have to be taken to bring production up to schedule. The survey is being made at the insistence of Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine, chief of the Re-training and Re-employment Administration. Recently Erskine contended that many veterans have had to turn down jobs because they could not find proper clothing.

On the cotton clothing front, the government turned last night to a combination of price increases and restoration of wartime production controls in the latest of a series of actions to obtain more yarn and fabric for shirts, underwear, pajamas, dresses and work clothing.

The aim is a 50 per cent increase in output of low-cost garments. O.P.A. ordered reinstatement May 1 of a spindle "freeze" which applies to machines producing more than 20 per cent of the nation's cotton yarn. Under the order, which had been dropped last August, spindles diverted to output of less essential yarn must be turned back to important types produced at the end of 1945.

And to make it easier, O.P.A. granted a five per cent "incentive" increase in price ceiling for cotton yarn needed for inexpensive garments. This price hike matches one granted six weeks ago for essential cotton fabrics.

C. P. A. also invoked a set-aside order which is designed, it said, to halt "serious diversion" of cotton yarn from essential clothing and from important industrial and agricultural uses.

This order earmarks from 30 to 85 per cent of certain types of yarn for priority requirements, including low-cost clothing. Another measure fixes minimum production levels which yarn spinners will be required to meet.

In announcing its new controls, C.P.A. said they are necessary because of a 13 per cent decline in yarn output during the last year.

It hopes to boost production from a rate of 195,000,000 pounds of yarn during the final three months of 1945 to 235,000,000 million pounds a quarter this year.

Proclamation

Aligning himself with an Act of Congress and a proclamation by President Truman, Mayor Edmund of Kingston today officially proclaimed April as Cancer Control Month, and urged the populace of Kingston and of Ulster county to ally themselves with the campaign of the American Cancer Society which is now in progress:

"Whereas statistics indicate that between Pearl Harbor and V-J Day more than twice as many Americans were killed by cancer as were killed or listed missing in action in World War II.

"Whereas cancer has shown itself to be a personal threat to every single one of us to every single home in America.

"Whereas it has been proven that concerted effort of government, science and public interest, teamed together in the fight, something to check the ravages of this National Killer—

"Therefore I, William F. Edelmuth, Mayor of the city of Kingston, and your personal representative of government, having allied myself with this great cause, do herewith proclaim this month of April as Cancer Control Month. Furthermore, during this period from April 1 to April 30, I do also abjure you, the citizenry of Kingston and Ulster county to give your full cooperation and financial support to the American Cancer Society in its campaign to achieve its goal of $12,000,000. Let us through dissemination of knowledge, through treatment centres and through intensified scientific research secure our homes, which are cornerstones of our nation, against this devastating enemy of our public health."

Sleeping Sickness

Menaces Americans

Washington, April 23 (AP)—A form of sleeping sickness is menacing American occupation troops on Okinawa, but a vaccine designed to combat it is under study.

Commodore T. M. Rivers of the Navy's Medical Corps told the National Academy of Sciences yesterday that Navy doctors got first-hand information on the disease—called Japanese B-enkephalitis—during an epidemic among natives last summer. He added: "The disease is extraordinarily disagreeable and can be highly fatal. It is a menace to our occupation troops because it occurs each summer on Okinawa."

Rivers later told reporters that while there is no specific treatment for the disease, a vaccine has been developed and is now being appraised as a possible protective weapon. He offered no details. The Okinawan form of sleeping sickness causes victims to suffer a brain inflammation.

Melio Bettina Will Start Training for Boxing Comeback

Ex-Light Heavy Champ Is Now Over 200 Mark; May Be Groomed for 2nd Title

Melio Bettina, who fought his way up the boxing ladder from a local amateur favorite to the light heavyweight championship of the world, will soon start training for the resumption of his ring career.

Having taken on a lot of excess weight in the army, the Beacon Bomber will have to campaign in the heavyweights ranks. Although he wasn't sure, as he chatted with a Freeman sports writer, Sunday, he thought Elmer "Violent" Ray might be his first opponent.

"I'll have to do a lot of hard training to get in shape again," Melio said. The hand on the scale jumps way past the 200 mark now when he steps on.

Aside from the excess poundage, Bettina looked in the proverbial "pink" and when he starts throwing those fists there probably will be many an earthquake among the present day crop of heavyweights.

Bettina has been a favorite with Kingston fans since the days he boxed at the old Serventier arena. He was strictly a green kid then, but stuck to the sport and finally won the professional light-heavy title from Tiger Jack Fox.

Before the war, Melio lost his crown to Billy Conn. He and the Pittsburgh Kid fought a draw in their first meeting, and in the second the title changed hands.

He fought in Kingston once as a professional, defeating Mario Liani, Italian champion at the municipal auditorium on a card of scraps for the Christmas Cheer Fund when C. J. Heiselman was mayor.

With Bettina out of the army, Jimmy Grippo, who started in the amateurs and piloted him to the heights he attained in boxing, will take time out from his career as a hypnotist and devote some attention to moving Melio back into the limelight.

Although Grippo was silent on plans for the future, when he had his round with the writer, there was a certain indication that he might be maneuvering the ex-light heavy boss into the heavyweight championship picture.

Newsom Is Ready To Teach Critics Lesson This Year

Colorful Hurler Opines Fans Will Witness 'Real Bobo'; Is in Great Condition

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, April 23 (AP)—In shape to pitch for the first time in three years, by his own candid admission, big Bobo Newsom of the Philadelphia Athletics has launched a one-man campaign of vindication against those who slandered his prowess last season.

"They're going to see the real Bobo this year," promised the 38-year-old right-hander who won title of "losingest" pitcher in 1945 with his 20 setbacks.

"I'm down under 200 pounds again, compared about 220 last year and my arm feels loose again. I'm gonna win a lot of ball games for Mr. Mack."

Backs Up Statements
For once, at least, Bobo would appear not to be just talking.

Thus far, in the 14 innings he has worked against the Yankees and the Red Sox, the two heaviest hitting outfits in the game, the garrulous North Carolinian has yielded just six hits and one run, and he chalked up the first two victories credited to the Mack-men.

"I got that Ted Williams twice on change-up pitches," he grunted with satisfaction. "I even slipped a couple of fast balls past him when he wasn't looking for them, but you got to be careful about that. He's a great hitter."

"Only run scored off me was a homer by that Yankee catcher, Aaron Robinson. I got a 3-1 count on him and he hit a home run. I'm gonna win a lot of ball games for Mr. Mack."

This was the first spring in the past three that Newsom joined the A's in their training camp. The previous two years he "worked out" on his farm until just before opening day, but he concedes now it wasn't a very good idea.

"I didn't know it, but I can tell now that I had too much fat on me, especially around the shoulders," he says. "My arm didn't feel limber like it does now."

Long one of the game's most colorful performers, Bobo had his last big year in 1940. He pitched Detroit to a pennant that season with 21 wins and 5 losses and then performed heroically against Cincinnati in the World Series, winning two games but losing the seventh and deciding contest. He since has been shunted among Brooklyn, the St. Louis Browns, Washington and the A's.

As the first flinger to face both the Yanks and the Red Sox this season and to still their big bats, Bobo was asked which he thought was the tougher batting order to pitch to—which offered a pitcher the better chance of letting up now and then?

"Yankees Are Tougher" "I'll have to say the Yankees are tougher," he replied after some reflection. "Understand, I'm not saying they're the better club, but they're meaner to pitch to right from the top down to the bottom. On the Sox you've got Williams and Dom Dimaggio and Bobby Doerr to worry about, but after that you can relax a little. With those Yanks, there isn't any place you can take a breather."

"As for us, maybe we won't win a pennant but we're going to give them all plenty of trouble. Old Bobo's going to do his part, too."

City Thermometer Says
Monday Was Warmest

Monday was the warmest day so far this month in Kingston, according to the records in the city engineer's office, with the official city thermometer recording a high of 75 degrees during the afternoon.

Today promises to be equally as warm.

Temperatures yesterday ranged from a low of 58 degrees to the high of 75. The second warmest day of the month was on April 2, when the official thermometer touched a high of 74 degrees, with a low of 37 degrees during the early morning.

Connie Mack, Wife, Separate Over Disposition of Stock

Mrs. McGillicuddy Says There's No Chance for Reconciliation With Veteran Manager

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Connie Mack and his 70-year-old wife, mother of five of his children, have separated in a squabble over disposition of stock in the Philadelphia Athletics baseball club.

Mrs. Cornelius McGillicuddy—the Macks' legal name—disclosed the separation yesterday and stated emphatically there was no chance for reconciliation.

"Not with me," she asserted. Mack, in New York with the Athletics, insisted "things will be straightened out in a short time."

"I have no comment to make," he told newsmen. "This is a personal matter and I hope people will regard it as private and keep out of it."

Mrs. McGillicuddy disclosed the Macks separated in January after she learned her husband had transferred half the stock he owns in the ball club among his three sons, Earle, Roy and Connie, Jr. "I learned in October about his transfer of the stock," she said. "I went to St. Petersburg, Fla. in December and asked him about it. He said it would be straightened out in two or three years."

'Life Too Uncertain'
"He is 83, and life is too uncertain to anticipate what may happen in the next two or three years."

Earle and Roy are Mack's children by his first marriage. He married his present wife in 1910—they had a son and four daughters. One daughter died, but is survived by a husband and son.

Mrs. Mack said she returned to Philadelphia from Florida in January and that her husband "sent word he was not returning and that he was sending for his clothes."

In relating the arguments over transfer of the stock, Mrs. Mack declared "there is that there are nine persons to be considered in this—his six children, son-in-law, grandson and me. And it didn't sound very good when he gave more than half the stock to three of them."

Unofficial estimates say the Athletics baseball franchise, including Shibe Park, are worth approximately $1,000,000. The Macks own controlling interest in the club with some of the shares still in the possession of heirs of Benjamin Shibe, the A's first president.

Important Meeting Of Katrine Club Scheduled Tonight

Full Turnout of Members Requested at Parley; Incorporation Papers May Be Presented

An important meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club is scheduled this evening at the Rose Marie Cabins starting at 8 o'clock. All members of the organization are urgently requested to be on hand.

Les Hotelling told The Freeman this morning that the club's incorporation papers may be officially presented to the members this evening by Chris Flanagan who is in Albany today. "We'd like a banner turnout particularly for this event," Hotelling declared and added, "I'm sure all of our members will want to be at the meeting when those papers are delivered."

After a series of various delays, the club's bulldozer is expected to begin action Wednesday morning on the grounds.

Favor Bridge Bill
At the last meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club members went on record favoring the Wickes-Hatfield Bridge Bill which now before Governor Thomas E. Dewey in Albany. The club already has received recognition of the action from Albany.

Following the business session this evening, club members will enjoy a social hour with refreshments.

Local Boxers Guest Of B'nai B'rith Officials Tonight

Members of the B'nai B'rith sports committee will be host this evening at their lodge rooms on Wall street to all boys interested competing in boxing bouts at the municipal auditorium. The get-together is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

This evening's informal parley has been designed to round up future local boxing talent for the semi-weekly ring cards at the Broadway arena and thus far interest is high with a number of Kingston hopefuls voicing their desire to engage in bouts before local fans.

Bill Singer, director of the bouts at the municipal auditorium, has issued a general invitation to all youths interested.

Efforts will be made at tonight's meeting to arrange some of the local talent on the next boxing card which is slated for Thursday evening, May 2.

A social hour will follow the meeting.

ed during the night in Kingston was 46 degrees.

Easter Sunday the highest point reached by the official thermometer was 62 degrees.

Health Speaker

KENNETH R. MILLER

Wednesday, April 24, at 8 p. m., Kenneth R. Miller, director of public information service of the American Social Hygiene Association, will address the meeting of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association in the crystal room of the Governor Clinton Hotel. His topic will be "Social Hygiene—Your Responsibility."

Mr. Miller is well qualified to discuss this subject. He has been associated with the voluntary health movement since 1936 and has been associated directly and indirectly with the national venereal disease educational program ever since.

Two years in the Third Service Command area, much time being spent in the Norfolk region out of which developed one of the most powerful citizens' venereal disease committees.

More recently Mr. Miller was assigned to the Caribbean Defense Command Area with headquarters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, during which time a number of interesting and valuable demonstrations were carried on with the civilian population of the island. There, large concentrations of military and naval personnel were exposed to conditions which were completely unfamiliar to them, necessitating very careful development of a social hygiene movement.

Prior to the war, Mr. Miller was educational director of the Philadelphia Tuberculosis and Health Association during which a most intensive educational program was conducted. In addition to the purely public education was an intensive lecture service among pre-professional students, nurses, and medical students on public health organization. Prior to affiliation with the voluntary health movement, several years were spent in commercial radio broadcasting.

Because of the marked rise in venereal disease in Ulster county, the committee invites all interested citizens to hear Mr. Miller and participate in this discussion.

Earthquake Recorded

Weston, Mass., April 23 (AP)—A "fairly strong" earthquake originating in the Southwest Pacific area—possibly south of Java, or in the New Zealand region—10,350 miles from Boston, was recorded on Weston College seismographs at 12:16:11 a. m. today. The Rev. Daniel Linehan, S. J., seismologist, said the reading did not provide "too good direction." The record was not as strong as those of some recent earthquakes, he added, and was farther away—almost halfway around the earth.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Turnabout
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 23 (AP)—A year ago girls at the Wilkes-Barre Y. M. C. A. couldn't find enough male partners for their dancing class.

Today the class was discontinued—but not because of a manpower shortage. Of 72 registrants, only five were girls.

Quiet, Please
Salt Lake City, April 23 (AP)—Soup slurpers who set to with gusto may be somewhat subdued from now on when they read the menus in Salt Lake city restaurants urging silence.

Meaning no offense to the customer, however, the Salt Lake Restaurant Association explained that it had merely agreed to help out the city's anti-noise campaign by printing "quiet" slogans on the menus.

Oh, Yeah?
Menlo Park, Calif., April 23 (AP)—Now Clayton Elliott, San Francisco attorney, can be that fellow you've heard about who's always telling the traffic cop "Look, Bub, I own the city hall."

Elliott has purchased for $35,000 the building leased to Menlo Park for its city hall.

Considerate
Seattle, April 23 (AP)—A Seattle Transit System bus was found abandoned three hours after it was stolen but the operating time wasn't a total loss.

Assistant Superintendent George Moyer said the unknown driver had piloted the bus 28 miles and collected four bus tokens and two dimes in the meter.

Squeeze Play
Paris, Ill., April 23 (AP)—How many squirts make a gallon of milk?

From 340 to 350, says Allen Stigler, 72, who says he's "counted them so many times" in hand milking 10 to 17 cows twice daily for the last 15 years "that I know what I'm talking about."

The mathematically inclined dairyman figures that he's milked 109,500 gallons in 15 years, or 37,777,500 squirts.

Yes, and No
Deland, Ill., April 23 (AP)—Deland voters rejected a $75,000 bond issue for a new high school gymnasium—but in the same election they approved the proposal to have a new gym.

Rioting Goes On At San Vittore

2,500 Convicts Opposed by 1,000 Policemen

Milan, Italy, April 23 (AP)—More than 1,000 policemen, reinforced by light tanks and armored cars, surrounded San Vittore jail today, firing continuously at the walls and windows of the prison where 2,500 convicts have been rioting since Sunday.

Continuing their resistance, the prisoners fired back sporadically following a night of terror in which they threatened to hang 10 of the 25 guards which they are holding as hostages. The fate of the hostages was not known.

One jailer and two prisoners were reported killed by gunfire during the night, and approximately 30 persons wounded.

During a brief truce, a number of nuns and 150 women prisoners were removed from the jail, which was described as "more of a battlefield than a prison."

Police said that no prisoners had succeeded in escaping. Searchlights and machine guns have been mounted at strategic places outside the walls, to meet any break.

The prisoners, many of whom are held on political charges, were reported to have seized enough ammunition and food to hold out for several days. The Milan radio said the rioting started when officials refused demands "for the release of certain prisoners."

Scholarships Available To State Veterans

Albany, N. Y., April 23 (AP)—Twelve hundred new scholarships are available today to veterans of New York state, and recipients of other four-year state scholarships are scheduled to receive $350 instead of $100 a year.

Governor Dewey last night signed measures bringing the total of veterans' scholarships to 3,600 and increasing the value of the state's 750 annual Regents scholarships and 40 war orphans' scholarships. Veterans already are entitled to $350 a year.

"These two bills, following recommendations made in my annual message to the legislature, mark a further and important advance in the state scholarship program," Dewey declared.

The legislature passed in 1944 a bill granting 1,200 scholarships to veterans and added another 1,200 in 1945. Dewey recommended in his message this year that 1,200 more be created this year and in 1947, and that all of them

The increased value for regents and war orphan scholarships is "much more realistic," Dewey said, asserting that the $100 figure had been fixed when that was the average annual tuition fee.

Last Ships Replaced

The cost of building merchant ships has doubled since previous days, a New Zealand shipping company has learned in placing orders with British builders. The ships to replace those sunk during the war, Auckland reports, are large and two smaller frigates are to cost about $25,000,000 have been ordered by that and another company. Speculation About Stone's Successor by a tax on sale of religious literature was unconstitutional.

In view of other historic decisions Stone objected sharply to major decisions invalidating the Agricultural Adjustment Act and a New York law establishing minimum wages for women.

Stone's support of President Roosevelt's early new deal legislation in bitter legal controversy before the high tribunal placed him in the reputation of a "Liberal." Mr. Roosevelt, a Democrat, later elevated him to the chief justice of the United States.

Only Eight-Man Court

During Stone's last term he had only an eight-man court. Jackson has been prosecuting Nazi leaders at Nuremberg and is not expected to return until the next term in October.

Stone's death now leaves to another Democratic president the selection of a court leader who perhaps can break the recent 4-4 tie in various cases.

On the day of the Chief Justice's death the court made known it was unable to agree on four more cases on which it had heard argument. This indicated a 4-4 split. The court now has stalled in this manner on 16 cases. It called for reargument on each after Jackson's return.

Mr. Truman's only appointee to the court is Harold H. Burton, former senator from Ohio and the only Republican remaining on the bench. Patterson's name figured prominently in the speculation that followed Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts' retirement last summer.

Selection of the War Secretary, however, would present Mr. Truman with the problem of finding a successor in the cabinet. Hence some senators said they thought their Republican colleagues Warren R. Austin of Vermont or Homer Ferguson of Michigan might enter the picture. Austin, however, is 68 years old.

Ferguson, who is 11 years younger, was member of the investigating committee Mr. Truman headed as a senator, and the two are close friends.

The first act was Frank Santa and Sam Herman, pianist and xylophonist. Mr. Herman at the xylophone displayed his technique using four as well as two hammers. Their arrangement included "Ball of St. Mary," "Tiger for the Tea for Two," Mr. Santa played several piano numbers such as "The Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe" and "Till the End of Time."

Arthur Ward was the juggler with the show displaying his skill with large colored hoops which he could roll off his head and back as well as tossing six at one time into the air. He could also tap dance and juggle balls at the same time.

Mr. Toman in addition to his "emceeing" sang some of the popular songs including a medley from "Oklahoma," "If I Loved You" from "Carousel" and "O' Man River" from "Showboat." To climax his act he invited Frank Strobel from the audience to assist him. Using Mr. Strobel as "Charlie McCarthy," he pretended to be Edgar Bergen in a witty skit.

Something different was the presentation of Jack Holst of Hollywood, the man who does the trapeze work for Johnny Weissmuller in the Tarzan movies. Horizontal bars decorated with palm fronds were set up in the center of the floor. Tarzan appropriately made his entrance by swinging down a rope from the auditorium's balcony. His work on the bars was one of the highlights of the evening as he exhibited perfect timing and control in the graceful turns, leaps, spins and somersaults. He was assisted by Mildred and Cheeta who was found to be Lillian Varga, the Indian Princess, who had performed earlier in the entertainment.

The show closed with Hedy Jones' "Three Kewpie Dolls." Any of the three would balance the scale well above average and the ballet type ruffled dresses added to the illusion. After the first laughter had subsided the "dolls" demonstrated the "Bunga a Bunga" dance. Not receiving any willing replies when they asked the partners in this dance, the girls immediately commiserated three young men from the audience: Don Meyers, Charles Neff, co-ermy captain and "Charlie Martini, petty officer second class, navy."

Roberts in 1937 as "Living in the house and being happy." Stone could have retired at 70, with full pay of $20,000 a year, but he preferred to stick to what he called "doing business at the old stand."

The other members of his so-called "liberal wing" on the old court—Justices Brandeis and Cardozo—went to their graves while the aging Stone continued to turn out more work than his younger colleagues. Death also claimed Justices Van Devanter, Sutherland and Butler. The retired Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and retired Justice Roberts and Mr. Reynolds survive Stone.

Mr. Truman's description of Stone as "a great jurist and a great American" was echoed in many other tributes.

Hughes, the retired chief justice, said he was "inexpressibly shocked" to see the country had suffered "an irreparable loss."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader of the Senate, said the character of Stone's service "set a noble example for Americans in public and private life."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) termed his death "a disaster."

(By The Associated Press)

Marion Pike Stone, a New England Republican, was appointed chief justice of the United States by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, after the jurist had gained a national reputation as a "liberal" while serving as associate justice for 16 years.

This was the second time in American history that a President of one political party had elevated to the nation's highest judicial post an associate justice who adhered to another political party.

President William Howard Taft, a Republican, had done it in 1910 when he nominated Justice Edward Douglas White, a Democrat, to be chief justice.

Despite his Republican label, he had been one of the leading-court supporters of Roosevelt administration legislation when he was appointed chief justice on June 12, 1941.

He succeeded Charles Evans Hughes, who retired at the age of 79 because of "considerations of health and age."

No Feeling of Elation

In a characteristic statement, he had this to say when informed of the nomination:

"I don't know whether one should feel gratification at assuming such large responsibilities. It is the kind of recognition any man would appreciate. The responsibility is so great that it doesn't create any sense of elation."

The jurist knew what tremendous responsibilities the position of Chief Justice entailed. Although he had been to him almost a religion, he realized he was taking on a heavier burden as presiding officer and directing head of the high tribunal.

His belief that law was "a human institution for human needs" impelled him to attempt to decide cases in the light of practical economic and social experience. This required that he delve exhaustively into the ramified background of litigation.

As he called without stint upon enormous physical resources built up in his youth by work on a New Hampshire farm and by playing center rush for the Amherst College football team.

In later years he became a member of President Herbert Hoover's "medicine ball cabinet"—a group of intimate friends who met at the White House frequently to keep in physical condition by tossing a medicine ball.

He also obtained physical workouts during the summer by rowing a boat at his island home in Maine. Fishing was another thing that contributed to his relaxation.

Judicial Appearance

Sitting on the bench in his black

robe, he presented an imposing appearance. He truly was judicial looking.

Inclined to be stout, he was above average height. His face was round and an unwary look of hair frequently fell over his right eye. His brow at times became corrugated as he puzzled over complicated points of law presented by attorneys.

Customarily he was genial in his relations with counsel arguing before the tribunal. But he sometimes employed stern methods with lawyers who evaded questions or wandered persistently from the issues of the litigation.

His appointment as Associate Justice in 1925 by President Calvin Coolidge, who attended Amherst College at the same time, was denounced by some "liberals" on the grounds that Stone had been a "Wall Street lawyer"—a member of a firm headed by a son-in-law of the elder J. P. Morgan.

Famous Dissenter

It was not long, however, before those famous words "Justice Holmes, Brandeis and Stone dissent" resounded frequently in the Supreme Court to around Stone's former critics. These three noted "liberals" thus registered opposition to majority opinions with which they could not agree.

After gaining a reputation as a dissenter, Stone usually found himself on the majority side in important cases beginning with the 1936-37 term. It was at this time that the trend of Supreme Court decisions shifted from anti-Roosevelt administration to pro-administration.

Before his Supreme Court service, he had spent only 11 months in public office—as attorney general in the Coolidge administration. He was picked by Coolidge to reorganize the justice department following the turbulent tenure of Harry M. Daugherty during the Warren G. Harding administration.

Previously he had been dean of the Columbia University Law School and had practiced his profession in New York city.

Born on a Farm

He was born October 11, 1872, on a farm near Chesterfield, New Hampshire, the son of Frederic Lauson and Ann Butler Stone.

He obtained a B.S. degree at Amherst in 1894, taught school two years, returned for an M.A. degree at Amherst in 1897, took an LL.B. degree from Columbia Law School in 1898 and was admitted to the New York bar in the same year.

He returned to Chesterfield on September 7, 1899, and married Miss Agnes Harvey. He said once that he had visited her the first time when she was one day old.

Two sons were born to them, Marshall and Lauson. Marshall became professor of mathematics at Harvard University. Lauson practiced law in New York.

Famous Dissents

Two of Stone's dissenting opinions while associate justice were widely quoted and friends of the jurist claimed they contributed greatly toward swinging public sentiment in favor of more "liberal" interpretation of constitutional questions.

These 1936 dissents voiced straight-from-the-shoulder opposition to majority decisions invalidating the Roosevelt administration's Agricultural Adjustment Act (A.A.A.) and a New York law establishing minimum wages for women.

In his A.A.A. dissent, he asserted that "while unconstitutional exercises of power by the executive and legislative branches of the government are subject to judicial restraint, the only check upon our own exercise of power is our own sense of self-restraint."

In the other, he said it was "difficult to imagine any grounds" for the majority opinion "other than our own personal economic predilections."

These statements emphasized his strong belief that the federal government and the states should be permitted to experiment with social and economic legislation in their efforts to produce a more abundant life. "Courts," he contended, "are concerned only with the power to enact statutes, not with their wisdom."

The funeral of Chief Justice Stone will be held at 2 p. m. (E.S.T.) Thursday in the Washington Cathedral.

Burial will be made in a Washington cemetery, still to be selected.

Thomas E. Waggaman, Supreme Court marshal, said no other details have been completed.

Veterans are restricted in construction programs the same as a non-veteran. The basis of the order is the use of materials, not the nature of the person who uses them.

The March 26 order does not apply to jobs that were started before that date and which have already included the integral parts of the building. This proviso refers to such phases as concrete footings, steel girders, foundation, brick work, when actually put in place on the site.

The small job exemptions under the act are briefly $400 for a house, $1,000 for a hotel, church, commercial or farm building, $15,000 for a factory.

If partitions have been torn out, etc. for remodeling of a building, authorization is required unless the cost of the entire remodeling job comes within the small job exemption.

Repair or construction of any house which has been damaged by tornado, fire or similar disaster can be done without authorization. If the total cost of the work is not over $6,000, and if it is started within 60 days after the disaster.

Private garages can be built on residential property without authorization if the cost is $400 or less. The rule does not apply to repainting and repainting where no change is made in the physical structure of the building, even if the outlay exceeds $400.

furnished music for assembly dancing until 1 o'clock in the morning.

The first act was Frank Santa and Sam Herman, pianist and xylophonist. Mr. Herman at the xylophone displayed his technique using four as well as two hammers. Their arrangement included "Ball of St. Mary," "Tiger for the Tea for Two," Mr. Santa played several piano numbers such as "The Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe" and "Till the End of Time."

Arthur Ward was the juggler with the show displaying his skill with large colored hoops which he could roll off his head and back as well as tossing six at one time into the air. He could also tap dance and juggle balls at the same time.

Mr. Toman in addition to his "emceeing" sang some of the popular songs including a medley from "Oklahoma," "If I Loved You" from "Carousel" and "O' Man River" from "Showboat." To climax his act he invited Frank Strobel from the audience to assist him. Using Mr. Strobel as "Charlie McCarthy," he pretended to be Edgar Bergen in a witty skit.

Tarzan Novelty

Something different was the presentation of Jack Holst of Hollywood, the man who does the trapeze work for Johnny Weissmuller in the Tarzan movies. Horizontal bars decorated with palm fronds were set up in the center of the floor. Tarzan appropriately made his entrance by swinging down a rope from the auditorium's balcony. His work on the bars was one of the highlights of the evening as he exhibited perfect timing and control in the graceful turns, leaps, spins and somersaults. He was assisted by Mildred and Cheeta who was found to be Lillian Varga, the Indian Princess, who had performed earlier in the entertainment.

The show closed with Hedy Jones' "Three Kewpie Dolls." Any of the three would balance the scale well above average and the ballet type ruffled dresses added to the illusion. After the first laughter had subsided the "dolls" demonstrated the "Bunga a Bunga" dance. Not receiving any willing replies when they asked the partners in this dance, the girls immediately commiserated three young men from the audience: Don Meyers, Charles Neff, co-ermy captain and "Charlie Martini, petty officer second class, navy."

Melio Bettina Will Start Training for Boxing Comeback

Ex-Light Heavy Champ Is Now Over 200 Mark; May Be Groomed for 2nd Title

Melio Bettina, who fought his way up the boxing ladder from a local amateur favorite to the light heavyweight championship of the world, will soon start training for the resumption of his ring career. Having taken on a lot of excess weight in the army, the Beacon Bomber will have to campaign in the heavyweights ranks. Although he wasn't sure, as he chatted with a Freeman sports writer, Sunday, he thought Elmer "Violent" Ray might be his first opponent. "I'll have to do a lot of hard training to get in shape again," Melio said. The hand on the 200 mark now when he steps on. Aside from the excess poundage, Bettina looked in the proverbial "pink," and when he starts throwing those fists there probably will be many an earthquake among the present day crop of heavyweights. Bettina has been a favorite with Kingston fans since the days he boxed at the old Servicenter arena. He was strictly a green kid then, but stuck to the sport and finally won the professional light-heavy title from Tiger Jack Fox. Before the war, Melio lost his crown to Billy Conn. He and the Pittsburgh Kid fought a draw in their first meeting, and in the second the title changed hands. He fought in Kingston once as a professional, defeating Mario Liani, Italian champion at the municipal auditorium on a card of scraps for the Christmas Cheer Fund when C. J. Heisselman was mayor. With Bettina out of the army, Jimmy Grippo, who started him in the amateurs and piloted him to the heights he attained in boxing, will take time out from his career as a hypnotist and devote some attention to moving Melio back into the limelight. Although Grippo was silent on plans for the future, when he had his round with the writer, there was a certain indication that he might be maneuvering the ex-light heavy boss into the heavyweight championship picture.

Connie Mack, Wife, Separate Over Disposition of Stock

Mrs. McGillicuddy Says There's No Chance for Reconciliation With Veteran Manager

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP) — Connie Mack and his 70-year-old wife, mother of five of his children, have separated in a squabble over disposition of stock in the Philadelphia Athletics baseball club.

Mrs. Cornelius McGillicuddy — the Mack's legal name — disclosed the separation yesterday and stated emphatically there was no chance for reconciliation. "Not with me," she asserted. Mack, in New York with the Athletics, insisted "things will be straightened out in a short time."

"I have no comment to make," he told newsmen. "This is a personal matter and I hope people will regard it as private and keep out of it."

Mrs. McGillicuddy disclosed the Mack's separated in January after she learned her husband had transferred half the stock he owns in the ball club among his three sons, Earle, Roy and Connie, Jr.

"I learned in October about his transfer of the stock," she said. "I went to St. Petersburg, Fla., in December to see him about it. He said it would be straightened out in two or three years."

"Life Too Uncertain" "He is 83, and life is too uncertain to anticipate what may happen in the next two or three years."

Earle and Roy are Mack's children by his first marriage. He married his present wife in 1910 — they had a son and four daughters. One daughter died, but is survived by a husband and son.

Mrs. Mack said she returned to Philadelphia from Florida in January and that her husband "sent word he was not returning and that he was sending for his clothes."

In relating the arguments over transfer of the stock, Mrs. Mack declared the point is that there are nine persons to be considered in this — his six children, son-in-law, grandson and me. And it didn't sound very good when he gave more than half the stock to three of them.

Unofficial estimates say the Athletics baseball franchise, including Shibe Park, are worth approximately $1,000,000. The Mack's own controlling interest in the club with some of the shares still in the possession of heirs of Benjamin Shibe, the A's first president.

Important Meeting Of Katrine Club Scheduled Tonight

Full Turnout of Members Requested at Parley; Incorporation Papers May Be Presented

An important meeting of the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club is scheduled this evening at the Rose Marie Cabins starting at 8 o'clock. All members of the organization are urgently requested to be on hand.

Les Heston told The Freeman this morning that the club's incorporation papers may be officially presented to the members this evening by Chris Flanagan who is in Albany today. "We'd like a banner turnout particularly for this event," Heston declared and added, "I'm sure all of our members will want to be at the meeting when those papers are delivered."

After a series of various delays, the club's bulldozer is expected to begin action Wednesday morning on the grounds.

Local Boxers Guest Of B'nai B'rith Officials Tonight

Members of the B'nai B'rith sports committee will be host this evening at their lodge rooms on Wall street to all boys interested competing in boxing bouts at the municipal auditorium. The get-together is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock.

This evening's informal parley has been designed to round up future local boxing talent for the semi-weekly ring cards at the Broadway arena thus far interest is high with a number of Kingston hopefuls voicing their desire to engage in bouts before local fans.

Bill Singer, director of the bouts at the municipal auditorium, has issued a general invitation to all youths interested. Efforts will be made at tonight's meeting to arrange some of the local talent on the next boxing card which is slated for Thursday evening, May 2.

A social hour will follow the meeting.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

Turnabout
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 23 (AP) — A year ago girls at the Wilkes-Barre Y.M.C.A. couldn't find enough male partners for their dancing class.

Today the class was discontinued—but not because of a manpower shortage. Of 72 registrants, only five were girls.

Quiet, Please
Salt Lake City, April 23 (AP) — Soup slurpers who set to with gusto may be somewhat subdued from now on when they read the menus in Salt Lake city restaurants urging silence.

Meaning no offense to the customer, however, the Salt Lake Restaurant Association explained that it had merely agreed to help out the city's anti-noise campaign by printing "quiet" slogans on the menus.

Oh, Yeah?
Menlo Park, Calif., April 23 (AP) — Now Clayton Elliott, San Francisco attorney, can be that fellow you've heard about who's always telling the traffic cop "Look, Bub I own the city hall."

Elliott has purchased for $35,000 the building leased to Menlo Park for its city hall.

Considerate
Seattle, April 23 (AP) — A Seattle Transit System bus was found abandoned three hours after it was stolen but the operating time wasn't a total loss.

Assistant Superintendent George Moyer said the unknown driver had piloted the bus 28 miles and collected four bus tokens and two dimes in the meter.

Squeeze Play
Paris, Ill., April 23 (AP) — How many squirts make a gallon of milk? From 340 to 350, says Allen Stigler, 72, who says he's "counted them so many times" in hand milking 10 to 17 cows twice daily for the last 15 years "that I know what I'm talking about."

The mathematically inclined dairyman figures that he's milked 109,500 gallons in 15 years, or 37,777,500 squirts.

Yes, and No
Deland, Ill., April 23 (AP) — Deland voters rejected a $75,000 bond issue for a new high school gymnasium—but in the same election they approved the proposal to have a new gym.

Earthquake Recorded

Weston, Mass., April 23 (AP) — A "fairly strong" earthquake originating in the Southwest Pacific area—possibly south of Java, or in the New Zealand region—10,350 miles from Weston, was recorded on Weston College seismographs at 12:16:11 a. m. today. The Rev. Daniel Linahan, S. J., seismologist, said the reading did not provide "too good direction." The record was not as strong as those of some recent earthquakes, he added, and was farther away—almost halfway around the earth.

Rioting Goes On At San Vittore

2,500 Convicts Opposed
by 1,000 Policemen

Milan, Italy, April 23 (AP)—More than 1,000 policemen, reinforced by light tanks and armored cars, surrounded San Vittore jail today, firing continuously at the walls and windows of the prison where 2,500 convicts have been rioting since Sunday.

Continuing their resistance, the prisoners fired back sporadically following a night of terror in which they threatened to hang 10 of the 25 guards which they are holding as hostages. The fate of the hostages was not known.

One jailer and two prisoners were reported killed by gunfire during the night, and approximately 30 persons wounded.

During a brief truce, a number of nuns and 150 women prisoners were removed from the jail, which was described as "more of a battlefield than a prison."

Police said that no prisoners had succeeded in escaping. Searchlights and machine guns have been mounted at strategic places outside the walls, to meet any break. The prisoners, many of whom are held on political charges, were reported to have seized enough ammunition and food to hold out for several days. The Milan radio said the rioting started when officials refused demands "for the release of certain prisoners."

Scholarships Available To State Veterans

Albany, N. Y., April 23 (AP)—Twelve hundred new scholarships are available today to veterans of New York state, and recipients of other four-year state scholarships are scheduled to receive $350 instead of $100 a year.

Governor Dewey last night signed measures bringing the total of veterans' scholarships to 3,600 and increasing the value of the state's 750 annual Regents scholarships and 40 war orphans' scholarships. Veterans already are entitled to $350 a year.

These two bills, following recommendations made in my annual message to the legislature, mark a further and important advance in the state scholarship program," Dewey declared. The legislature passed in 1944 a bill granting 1,200 scholarships to veterans and added another 1,200 in 1945. Dewey recommended in his message this year that 1,200 more be created this year and in 1947, and that all of them
